KRAFT TO SELL WOLF ROCK HALL

Through the real estate agency of S. H. Merritt, 63 John street, a contract of purchase has been entered into today by George L. Kinkade, of this city, for "Wolf Rock Hall," the fine country place of former Mayor John E. Kraft, near Lake Katrine. The purchase will not include the whole estate, which consists of about 250 acres of land, but takes the large colonial residence, coachman's cottage, garage and commodious carriage house and stables, together with one hundred and twenty-five acres of land, surrounding these buildings. Mr. Kraft will retain the remainder of the estate, including the farm buildings, "Wolf Rock," which takes its name from an immense boulder of curious shape, standing loose on the top of a hill. A short distance back of the residence is a commodious country place, forming a fine estate as the result of several purchases of land from Mathew Garry, former Mayor William D. Brinnier, Charles Hubscher, William Brink, and Katherine Osterhoudt. The view from the residence grounds is unsurpassed for beauty and grandeur. It is understood Mr. Kinkade is to convert the residence into an exclusive fashionable boarding house. Its location will undoubtedly make it popular. Mayor Canfield of the firm of Brinnier & Canfield is the attorney in the transaction.

DOLLARS COME ROLLING ALONG

If Yours Hasn't Arrived at the Social Bureau Yet be Sure to Start it on the Way.

The letters with the dollars in them patter into the Bureau of Social Service like a gentle spring rain. The postman delivers them, boys on wheels ride up and leave them, people bring them up the stairs and lay them on Mrs. MacMillan's table with a pleasant word of encouragement.

The membership campaign being waged by the bureau is bringing in people who would have joined long ago if they had known what they know now.

But there are still hundreds of people in town who are the right kind and who haven't found out that they can do more and better charitable work for less money through the bureau than in any other way.

At an enthusiastic meeting of the board of managers together with the membership and executive committees, held at the supreme court chambers last night, it was decided to finish up the campaign with a personal call on a number of people who should join this movement but have not yet done so.

Busy men and women whose time is already filled, volunteered for this work, because they recognized the value of it. Time is much harder to give than money, but it's worth ten times as much. If each member who has already joined this organization would give the time to get two or three other people, the power of the work would be instantly doubled and trebled.

You who are reading this, how much time do you give to charity and to the betterment of your city? What are you worth to the community in which you live? Answer this question to yourself, and if you don't stand 90 per cent with your conscience in the reply, do something.

If you are already a member, get somebody else to join. If you by any chance are not yet in, don't delay another minute, but send your contribution and urge your neighbor to do the same.

Enlist in this army of charity volunteers. Don't wait for conscription, but join the regiment of those who stand shoulder to shoulder fighting to better the city in which they live. Then you will feel that you are 100 per cent efficient and that your community is the better for your living in it.

500 IRISH REBELS TAKEN PRISONERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 29.—More than 500 persons have been killed and wounded in the Irish rebellion, according to an unofficial estimate.

There has been fighting in at least seven Irish counties in the southeastern and western parts of the island.

Five hundred prisoners have been captured by the British forces, including some women.

There was an abortive uprising in the city of Cork in which at least two persons were killed.

Part of the city of Dublin has been destroyed by fire and a big section has been looted.

From ten thousand to 15,000 Sinn Feiners and their sympathizers took part in the Irish revolt.

The military forces under Sir John Maxwell are gradually restoring order and in Dublin, the seat of the rebellion, the fighting has been reduced to sniping.

The foregoing were the outstanding features of the situation in Ireland today.

An official announcement, issued at midnight by Field Marshal Viscount French, commander of the home forces, put a much more optimistic complexion upon conditions in Ireland than had existed during the previous 48 hours.

Field Marshal French states that military operations are proceeding satisfactorily but the report indicates that the general postoffice building in Dublin is still in the hands of the rebels, being used as their base of operations.

The cordon of troops thrown around the southern, northern and western parts of Dublin is being drawn closer and closer about the remaining forces of the rebels and it is believed they will surrender.

In Sackville street, Dublin, the Sinn Feiners still hold some improvised barricades in the street but the men are cut off from supplies and the military officials believe they will soon be starved out.

British troops in the district northwest of the Four Courts, in Dublin, are proceeding in a methodical way to clear the buildings of snipers, but, in the words of Field Marshal French, "the clearance of these snipers is a matter of time."

The worst fires in the Irish capital, Field Marshal French says, occurred in the district around Sackville street where the fighting was very severe on Thursday.

Field Marshal French's official report concludes:

"In the other parts of Ireland the principal centers of disturbance are in county Galway and in Enniscorthy. Disturbances are also reported at Killarney, Clonmel and Gorey.

"The other parts of Ireland appear normal.

"The general trend of the reports indicates that the disturbances are of local character."

In their operations, particularly in Dublin, the Sinn Feiners were reinforced by Radical Socialist followers, of James Larkin, the well-known labor leader. Many women, some of them in green uniforms, fought side by side with the rebels in the trenches in St. Stephen's Green. It is believed that some of these women were killed. It is known that some were wounded.

The exact number of dead may never be known for bodies of rebels were removed at night by sympathizers and secretely buried.

It has been five days since the first shot in the revolt was fired on Monday but already the rebellion has spent its force and the white and green flag with its harp (The flag of the Irish republic) has been torn from practically all the buildings which the rebels had occupied.

It is now learned that Lord Wimborne, the lord lieutenant of Ireland, had a narrow escape from death during the height of the fighting. It is not known whether an attempt was made to assassinate him or whether his adventure befell him at the time the rebels made their attack on his residence.

Details of the first day's fighting say that the rebels placed small bodies of armed men throughout the outskirts of Dublin. At a signal these began firing to distract the attention of the soldiery and constables while the main body made an attack upon the postoffice, the castle occupied by the lord lieutenant, the Hotel Metropole, four courts, St. Stephen's Green, Trinity College and the fashionable Shelbourne Hotel.

Telegraph wires were cut and a detachment broke into the telephone exchange and smashed all the instruments. Along Sackville street, the rebels broke into stores, carrying the counters and other articles into the streets for the erection of barricades. During the afternoon and night of Monday the postoffice changed hands several times. The rebels were well armed although their weapons were of various patterns. It was regarded as remarkable that all the guns were provided with bayonets.

It was part of the plan to sieze the barracks, but the rebels were easily frustrated in this attempt.

When the British forces began to shell fire against Liberty Hall, the headquarters of the rebels, many people became terror stricken and fled from the city.

The capture of the Dublin postoffice is thus described: "Just upon the stroke of noon on Monday about 100 young men, wearing bandoliers and soft hats, with bands of green ribbon and all armed with rifles bearing bayonets, dashed into postal building and brusquely ordered all the officials and clerks to leave. There were about three hundred employes at work at the time. Postal officials tried to reason with the rebels, but they brandished their bayonetted rifles in such fashion that discretion was deemed the better part of valor. As the postal employes fled the rebels began turning the building into a blockhouse while a body went to the roof and began firing into the streets at constables and soldiers."

Scores of buildings in Dublin and on the outskirts have been turned into hospitals. In some of these wounded soldiers and wounded rebels lie side by side. Some of the soldiers that were rushed to Dublin from England were seasoned veterans who had campaigned against the Germans in France. They declare that the Sinn Feiners put up a fight of the most desperate character and that many of them who could have saved their lives by surrender refused to do so.

"The worst act of the rebels," said the Daily Mail, "was the shooting of National Reserve men, many of them elderly men, who were returning after a parade march with their rifles, but no cartridges. The rebels blazed away from windows at a fifty yard range, felling reserve men."

A despatch to the Chronicle says: "The rebels were mostly armed with old rifles and a wonderful collection of bayonets. Some of the bullets were a type that inflicted the most terrible wounds. A striking figure among the rebels was an elderly woman, a reputed leader, who wore a uniform consisting of a green tunic and trousers and who carried a rifle with a bayonet affixed.

"On Wednesday morning two small field pieces were sent into action by the British troops and soon Liberty Hall was a mass of ruins. The rebels did not reply and the British troops, with cheers, dashed forward and occupied the ruins."

It is reported from both Dublin and Cork that cooler heads among the Sinn Feiners wanted to postpone the uprising but that they were overborne by the more fiery leaders who had just learned of the capture of Sir Roger Casement by the British.

The Sinn Feiners are said to resent angrily the charge that the rebellion was fostered and financed by Germans. They claim it is a purely Irish movement.

Demands for the resignation of Augustine Birrell and Lord Wimborne will be made in parliament next week.

King George has been deeply moved by the revolt. He is said to have requested Premier Asquith to furnish him with all details relating to it.

THIRD ARMY CORPS UNION IN THIS CITY

The fifty-second annual meeting of the Third Army Corps Union will be held at the Stuyvesant Hotel in this city on Friday, May 5.

The business meeting will be called to order at 12 o'clock noon; lunch will be served at 1 o'clock; and after lunch automobiles will be in readiness for a trip around the Ashokan reservoir. At 6 o'clock in the evening a reception will be held for the guests and the annual banquet will be served at 7 o'clock.

The present officers of the association are: Major James H. Everett, president; General James R. O'Beirne, vice president; Major William P. Shreve, secretary-treasurer. The directors are General Thomas R. Matthews, Captain Daniel F. Crowley, Captain Joseph W. Clymer, Captain Charles C. Dally, Colonel Sylvester Bonnaffon, Jr., Captain John J. Perine, Captain Charles B. Wood and Captain Griffin A. Hart.

The notices of the meeting sent to members state: "We are yet in the marching column, and who miss our comrades as they have fallen out in the fifty years past need not be reminded that we are bringing up the rear and must soon reach the reviewing stand and pass on to the 'Eternal Camping Ground.'

"All those who were with us a year ago, thanks to a kind Providence, are still living, so far as is known. Let us hope that they, and others who hear this invitation but have not in many years perhaps met with us, may fall into line on the fifth of May and answer 'Here.'"

BOARD FIXES PAY FOR TEACHERS

The report of the teachers' committee relative to salaries adopted by the board of education Friday night, was as follows:

To the Honorable, the Board of Education.

Gentlemen:—

Your teachers' committee beg to submit the following report and recommendations. In our recommendation of salaries to be paid for the school year beginning August 1, 1916, and ending July 31, 1917, we have been guided by the following resolution adopted by unanimous vote of the board of education March 5, 1915:

First.—That the maximum salary for the principalship of each of our grammar schools excepting school No. 1, which is a small school with only four rooms, be fixed at $1,500 per year and that starting with the present salaries of the several principals of such schools, the maximum be approached by an annual increase for satisfactory service of $50.

Second.—That the maximum salary for eighth grade teachers be fixed at $800 and that the maximum salary for all teachers below the eighth grade be fixed at $750, the minimum salary to remain at $500; that the maximum salary of grade teachers be approached upon the joint recommendation of the principal and superintendent by an annual increase of $25 for satisfactory service.

We beg to report that we find no record in the minutes of a fixed schedule of salaries for our high school teachers. From a report of salaries of teachers in cities of the state under date of January, 1916, we find that nineteen cities including Hudson, Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh, are paying their academic women teachers a minimum of $700 or more, the minimum for Newburgh being $900, for Poughkeepsie $800, Hudson and Kingston $700. We find that twenty-eight cities are paying their academic women teachers a maximum of $900 or more, the maximum for Newburgh and Poughkeepsie being $1,300. Albany, Amsterdam, Batavia, Binghamton, Buffalo, Canandaigua, Gloversville, Jamestown, Middletown, Mount Vernon, New Rochelle, Rochester, Rome, Schenectady, Utica, Yonkers and White Plains are paying maximum salaries to women in the high schools ranging from $1,000 to $1,700.

Frequent changes in the teaching force break the continuity of good work. A new teacher of superior merit requires a good share of the first year to adjust herself to local conditinos and get acquainted with the personnel of her classes. In order to hold our good teachers we must fix the maximum salary at a sum that will be attractive to them. We therefore recommend that the minimum salary for women high school teachers be fixed at the sum of $700 per annum and that the maximum salary for the same teachers be fixed at $900 per annum and that such maximum be approached upon the joint recommendation of the principal and superintendent by an annual increase of $50 for satisfactory service. A teacher appointed at the minimum salary of $700 would therefore teach four years before being entitled to the maximum salary.

In conformity with the foregoing resolutions regulating the salaries of grade teachers and the recommendation for minimum and maximum salaries for women high school teachers, we herewith submit a list of supervisors, attendance officers, clerks, principals and teachers with salaries proposed for the school year beginning September 5, 1916, and we recommend the election of these teachers at the annual salary opposite each name.

CALL THE BLUFF IS GOOD ADVICE

Newburgh Has Been Through the Mill and Knows How the State Highway Department Makes Extravagant Plans.

Again referring in its leading editorial to the Sleightsburgh bridge matter, the Newburgh News not only makes clear that interest in the bridge is not confined to Kingston, but gives those interested some good advice. The News says:

People along the Hudson, particularly the west shore, expect prompt action by the state highway department in the revision of plans for the Sleightsburgh bridge across Rondout creek to provide a direct entrance into Kingston for trunk route No. 3 from the New Jersey line past Storm King and through Newburgh to the state capital. Action has been so long deferred that the prices of materials have gone up materially and when bids for the work were opened some days ago the lowest figure was found to be $40,000 in excess of the estimate, and under the law all the proposals had to be rejected.

The greatest indignation over the situation exists in Kingston. According to information obtained by The Freeman, the highway department takes the stand "the plans for the bridge cannot be revised to bring the cost within the appropriation available." The department is mistaken. By the elimination of hangings, gardens, fluted columns and other frills from the plans, the structure can be built at a saving of thousands of dollars. What is more, the structure is going to be built. The money voted for the bridge is going to be devoted to it, not diverted to roads in remote sections of the state. If the department does not get on the job it will hear from the people of the Hudson river section in a no uncertain manner. Newburgh and other west shore towns share Kingston's indignation over the apparent attempt to deprive it of this highly important and greatly needed link of trunk route 3.

It is the duty of the highway engineers to provide for a substantial bridge within the amount of the appropriation. It is no part of their duty to draw up plans so elaborate, unnecessarily so, as to make it impossible to let a contract. If they had the right to do this there might never be a bridge across Rondout creek. If the legislature should appropriate a million dollars they might overtop this figure and declare they could not "revise" the plans.

The Rondout bridge situation is reminiscent of the Storm King highway matter. Early estimates of the cost of this road were very high and for a long time there was no encouragement from Albany that the plans could be modified to bring down the cost to a reasonable amount. Newburgh insisted on the project being put through. It declined to stand for any further argument or delay. When the Albany authorities saw Newburgh could not be bluffed, the engineers got busy and their revised estimates effected a large saving, so there was no trouble over finances.

Newburgh's advice to Kingston is to hold its ground. If Kingston needs help from other towns it will obtain it. The Sleightsburgh bridge must be built. It is the final link in the great west shore highway. The legislature has provided for it and there is nothing for the highway department to do except build it, and the sooner it acts the better. The trunk has been built right up to the bank of the creek opposite Kingston. Without a bridge, travel either would have to use a one-horse ferry or detour several miles by St. Remy and Eddyville. The bridge should be hurried in order that it may be dedicated practically at the time of the completion of the Storm King highway next year.

Daily Thought.

Certainly, in our little sphere, it is not the most active people to whom we owe the most. . . . It is the lives like the stars, which simply pour down on us the calm light of their bright and faithful being, up to which we look, and out of which we gather the deepest calm and courage.—Brooks.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 29.—Brisk buying of marine preferred made that stock the most prominent feature of the dealings on the stock exchange at the opening today. Opening sales were at 85½, from which it quickly rose to 87½, a gain of 2⅞ and a new high record. The common rose ½ to 21⅝. Movements in other issues were irregular, Reading yielding ¼ to 86¾, while fractional gains were made in Atchison, Erie and New Haven. Changes in the industrials were also mixed. Industrial Alcohol advanced 1⅝ to 145 and Crucible Steel ½ to 81½, while Baldwin Locomotive sustained a small fractional loss. Anaconda opened ¾ lower at 85⅜, but quickly rallied to 86 and Utah also opened down ¾ recovering the loss in a few minutes.

Mexican Petroleum receded 1⅜ to 95¼. Westinghouse, after opening at 58, receded to 57½. Pittsburgh opened ⅛ higher at 28.

The market closed strong. There was no change in the conditions in the last hour. Most interest was attached to the trading in the marine issues, with Marine pfd continuing in good demand above 90. There was also a good demand for distillers, certificates, which rose to above 54, the highest price touched since 1907. American Locomotive also developed strength, advancing 2 points to 72. The leading industrials, including Steel Common, were almost at a standstill in the last hour. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds strong.

Given Another Chance.

William Burchart, arrested for being drunk, was given another chance when arraigned this morning before Recorder Lang. William on his promise to climb aboard the water wagon was discharged.

Resourceful Vocabulary.

"The river Parana," declares the prospectus of a real estate agent in Parana, Brazil, "is the most watery in the state, one of the most extended in the world. It is navigable until to this state for ships of great profoundness; it is also sufficiently fishful." This same cheerful chap it is who further asseverates that "the vegetable reign is excessfully represented in resinous, oily and gummous plants."

Value of Yawning.

A good yawn, medical experts say, is excellent for the lungs, and for all the breathing organs as well. But there is an art in yawning, just as there is an art in breathing. Every yawn should be as deep as possible, so as to bring all the muscles of the throat and chest into action, and also to fill the lungs with a current of fresh air.

Difference In Vinegar.

What a difference in table vinegars! Some have a coarse acidity that is most pronounced. And for just a bit more than you usually pay you will find one of unusual mellowness and of much greater strength than the ordinary vinegar. It is surprising what a difference a really good vinegar makes in salad dressing or for pickling.

Miss Alta Brodhead called at the home of Mrs. R. Niesh one day the past week.

Ernest Sheeley spent Sunday at his home in the Clove.

Virgil Cross and family of Kyserike and Miss Jeannette Garrison of Alligerville motored down on Monday evening to attend the musical concert in the Reformed Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan E. Goetcheus were out driving one afternoon this week.

Dr. and Mrs. Sherman of Stone Ridge attended the concert in the Reformed Church on Monday evening.

The Patterson Jubilee Singers gave a concert in the Reformed Church on Monday evening. There were a large number present. The entertainment was excellent and all felt well repaid for coming out. There were five members in the company. Mme Lillian Patterson, soprano; Miss Grace Thompson, alto and reader; Miss Chonita Hyers, pianist and soprano; Hiram Berry, tenor; N. O. Patterson, bass. The program for the evening was as follows: Opening chorus—Company. Children Hail! Hail! Hail! led by Miss Thompson. High Time—Led by Mr. Berry. Peter on the Sea a Fishing—Led by Miss Hyers. Solo and Chorus—My Old Kentucky Home—Miss Thompson. Rise! Shine!—Led by Mr. Patterson. Humorous Quartet—Swing Low Sweet Chariot. Led by Mme. Patterson. Roll Jordan Roll—Led by Mr. Berry. Old Black Joe—Mr. Patterson. Intermission. Part II. Opening Chorus—Company. Soprano Solo—Somewhere a Voice is Calling. Reading—Miss Thompson. Bass Solo—I am King of the Land and the Sea. Tenor Solo—Mr. Berry. Quartet—Selected. Closing Chorus—Jingle Bells.

Miss Harriet Church of Albany Normal, who has been home on her Easter vacation, returned to school on Wednesday.

Fred Clearwater, who works in Connecticut, was home for Easter.

Franklin Church, who has been home on his Easter vacation, returned to New Jersey on Thursday.

Miss Mary C. Van Wagenen called on Miss Jessie Snyder on Wednesday afternoon of this week.

The weather for the past week has been rather stormy. It is certainly fulfilling the statement, April showers bring May flowers.

Some of the high school students from this place will attend the senior play at Kingston on Friday evening.

On account of the illness of her little daughter, Edna Marie, Mrs. Walter Devlin was prevented from going to Pittsburgh on Wednesday, as she had arranged.

Mr. and Mrs. John Krom were in town on Thursday.

The young people of the place met at the Reformed Church parsonage on Wednesday after prayer to spend a social evening. There were quite a number present. Many different games were participated in and a most enjoyble evening was spent by all who were present. Dainty refreshments were served consisting of cake and lemonade.

"READER CONFIDENCE"

There, Mr. Manufacturer, is a term to remember in considering advertising.

The daily intimacy of the newspapers with its readers begets the confidence of friendship.

They believe in its advertisers.

That is one reason newspaper advertising pays. There are others which the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers' Association, 806 World Building, New York, will gladly give to any interested manufacturer.

The KITCHEN CABINET

You can give other people your advice, but you cannot give them your experience. You can give them your remedy, but can by no means give them its effect upon yourself. Perhaps this is just as well, since each is to live his individual life and make his own best achievement out of it.

ALL KINDS OF GOOD THINGS.

The following are some unusual stuffings to use for chicken, duck or turkey:

Rice and Ham Stuffing.—Put some cooked ham through a meat chopper; add to a cupful of ham a cupful of rice, six chopped mushrooms, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, salt and pepper, and red pepper to taste, four tablespoonfuls of malted butter and sufficient stock to moisten.

Corn Bread and Nut Stuffing.—Crumb a pint of cornbread, add the grated rind of a lemon, a cupful of finely chopped nutmeats, two tablespoonfuls of mixed dried herbs, salt and pepper to taste and a half cupful of melted butter. Bacon drippings may be used in place of the butter.

Prunes combined with apples, lemon rind and juice and cooked to a heavy marmalade make a most delicious accompaniment to roast pork.

Cranberry Jelly With Whipped Cream.—Put four cupfuls of cranberries into two quarts of cold water and stew until tender. Strain through a cheesecloth. Measure this liquid, and for each pint add a half cupful of sugar, and a tablespoonful of sage. Boil all together until the sage becomes transparent, then pour into a fancy mold and let stand in a cool place twelve hours. When ready to serve turn out on a pretty dish and garnish with sweetened whipped cream.

Fine Cake.—Dissolve a cake of compressed yeast in two cupfuls of lukewarm water, stir into it eight cupfuls of flour, beat until it forms a smooth paste. Cover and let rise for two hours, then add two cupfuls of creamed shortening, two of sugar, a nutmeg grated, half a pound of shredded citron peel, one and a half pounds of raisins, half a cupful of blanched and shredded almonds and four well-beaten eggs. Fill a large pan half full and bake three and a half hours.

Jam and jelly, if placed sandwich fashion on bread may take the place of cake.

MILTON.

Milton, April 28.—Word has been received of the death of Frank Newman. Many of our people will remember him as he lived here until manhood.

Miss Rachel Clarke has accepted a position as teacher in the Marlborough grammar school for the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. William Filler of Poughkeepsie spent Sunday with Mrs. Filler's mother, Mrs. Benj. Roe, who is still very ill.

Mrs. William G. Covert, Clifford Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mears, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Norton, Romer Roe and Miss J. L. Northrip of New York city were with their respective relatives here on Easter Sunday.

Grecian Briggs, C. Powell Townsend, Edwin Brown and Miss Averill Clark also visited their relatives and friends over the Easter time.

Miss Lent McNicholas and brother, Frank McNicholas, attended the funeral of their brother-in-law, Mr. Sherman, in New York last week.

Saturday last, toward noon, the call of fire was heard. A chimney on Thomas Conroy's house had taken fire. The chemical engine arrived in a few minutes and put the fire out before it had done very much damage. Lester Mackey injured his right hand when helping with the engine so that several stitches were taken.

The Easter cantata given on Sunday evening in the M. E. Church was remarkably well rendered, considering the few rehearsals. The pipe organ together with the piano and twenty voices, led by the Rev. W. F. Wilke, were appreciated. The vocal solos by Mrs. Johannes Merlin and Rev. Wilke were very impressive. Revs. Mrs. Martha H. Bell, John S. Lull and Henry F. Wilke were very helpful in their respective remarks and prayers. The flowers were very profuse and beautiful in the morning the several churches held Easter services.

Mrs. Everett Hyatt will give a party for her Sunday school class and their escorts on Saturday evening.

Services on Sunday in the M. E. Church: Sunday school at 10 and morning worship at 11 o'clock. Subject of sermon, "Elijah and the Little Cloud." Epworth League devotional meeting at 7 p. m.; topic, "What Are My Prayer Habits?" Leader, Miss Gladys V. Townsend. Evening worship at 7:30 o'clock; subject of sermon, "Tree Planting."

Ladies Aid Society met with Mrs. Thomas Sears, Jr., Friday at 2:30 o'clock.

The Happy Hour Club will meet at the M. E. parsonage on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Junior Epworth League meet in the church on Saturday at 2 o'clock. Members of the church are urged to be present.

Mrs. Frank Green, widow of the late station agent, Frank Green, will move to Cornwall next week.

The concert given on Wednesday evening by M. Schoonmaker quartet, Edison phonograph and Mrs. McTameney, was well attended and was greatly appreciated. Listeners could scarcely realize that the clear, natural tones and words coming from the beautiful case or cabinet were not the artists themselves. The Edison diamond disc phonograph has surely proved a wonder. Mrs. McTameney was listened to with great pleasure. Her articulation and tones were so plain and musical. The quartet surely did wonderfully well and were repeatedly called out. Milton would be glad to get them all here again after their summer vacation. The sum for the library is not known at this writing. Mr. Northrip, the president of the library, deserves many thanks for making such delightful arrangements. The board of trustees and libarians are grateful to the Schoonmakers and also to the people who showed their appreciation by their presence.

C. S. Northrip was in Newburgh on Thursday.

J. H. Vanderlyn and William M. Burdell of New Paltz were in Milton on Thursday on legal business.

Over $30 were taken in at the Schoonmaker concert on Wednesday evening.

TWO THOUSAND TO MARCH IN PARADE

Memorial Day Observance to be on Splendid Scale in Kingston With Grand Army Ranks Augmented by Civic and Fraternal Organizations.

A distinctly patriotic spirit was manifested Friday night by representatives of more than a score of civic and military organizations who met at the armory to outline arrangements for the observance of Memorial Day. As a result of the enthusiasm shown it was made plain that this year the Grand Army will be assured of an escort of nearly 2,000 marchers and Major Everett, who presided over the meeting, was much pleased at the interest displayed by all present.

School children will be a conspicuous feature of the parade, which will constitute the morning program and, in addition to the pupils from the grade schools considerable interest is being manifested by high school students. No less than four well-drilled companies of high school boys may be in line, it is believed, Captain Frank L. Meagher having been asked if he would drill volunteers from the student body which has been studying the military training bill which has been passed by the legislature. The high school corps would be manned by its own officers in case the students carry out the suggestions which some of them have outlined.

As a patriotic demonstration, and an incidental hint of preparedness sentiment, it is thought the Memorial Day observance next month will make a new record in Kingston. The line of march as decided upon at this meeting will be headed by Major George Chandler as grand marshal, and will start from the armory at 10 a. m. parading to the Kingston Academy grounds and countermarching thence down Broadway to Chestnut street, returning to city hall, where the exercises will be held.

Organizations represented at the meeting were, Pratt Post, No. 127, G. A. R., Company M, Spanish-American War Veterans, Sons of Veterans, the Old Guard, Washington Camp, No. 2, Patriotic Order Sons of America Kingston Council, No. 556, Order of United Commercial Travelers, Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, Improved Order of Red Men; Aretas Lodge, No. 172, C. S. Clay Lodge, No. 528, Kingston Encampment, No. 125, I. O. O. F. Knights of Columbus, Loyal Order of Moose, Carpenters' Union the Y. M. C. A. and all the public schools of the city.

A special feature will be the firemen who will turn out in numbers, the following companies to be represented: Excelsior Hose Company, Rapid Hose Company, Wiltwyck Hose Company and Central Hook and Ladder Company. The common council and other branches of the city government will participate in the parade and exercises to follow.

An energetic committee on publicity has been named as follows: John E. Mahar, chairman; Patrick H. [illegible], Secretary; Major Everett, Captain Hornbeck, Alderman Walter P. Crane, Chief of Police J. Allan Wood, Henry Goldsworthy and Captain Frank L. Meagher. The committee of arrangements will meet again on May 8 when details will be perfected for the most notable Memorial Day observance that Kingston has known in years.

Sunday.

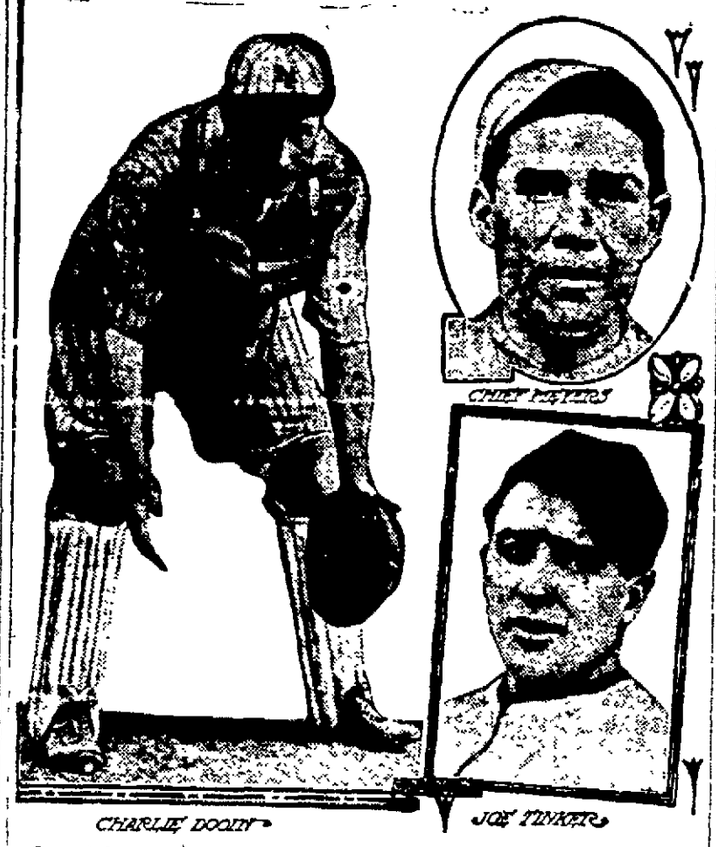
In A. D. 313 the Emperor Constantine of Rome granted toleration to the Christians, and in 321 he gave imperial sanction to the observance of the first day of the week. The edict which introduced a new era in Sunday observance runs: "On the venerable day of the sun let the magistrate and people residing in cities rest and let all workshops be closed. In the country, however, persons engaged in the work of cultivation may freely and lawfully continue their pursuits because it often happens that another day is not so suitable for grain sowing or for vine planting lest by neglecting the proper moment for such operations the bounty of heaven should be lost."

FRED HERRESHOFF

FRED HERRESHOFF TO ESSAY COME BACK AS GOLF STAR.

Fred Herreshoff, formerly a conspicuous figure in golf, will make an attempt this year to regain his former prestige. When Herreshoff was taken ill last year and was sent to a hospital it was thought that he would never again wield a golf club. It was said his eyes were seriously affected. But now Herreshoff has appeared on the Garden City, L. I., links, in something like his old form. It is now said he is playing almost as well as ever and his friends say he will be up among the leaders in competitive golf this summer.

"GOAT GETTERS" IN NATIONAL LEAGUE



One of the big factors of a baseball team is to have some member who can get on the nerves of an opposing pitcher or player and cause that particular star to forget he is in a baseball game. Charley Dooin is one of the most successful "goat getters" in the National league. Not only does he keep after opposing hurlers, but when he is catching he has had the swatter so engrossed on framing a reply to some caustic remark that the third perfect strike slid by without being molested. One of the reasons for the downfall of Chief Meyers was because he was so susceptible to being "kidded." Dooin used to have the Indian riled all the time. When Joe Tinker was in the National league with the Reds, he had Meyers continually fighting and often McGraw would remove the redskin from the game.

"So they call you 'chief,' do they? Well, I think it should be changed to 'Cheese' Meyers," barked Tinker from the bench one afternoon.

Meyers dropped his bat and started for Tinker. McGraw started for Meyers.

"Doggone that Tinker. Remarks like that would make any man fight that had red blood in his veins," shrieked Meyers.

"Red blood! Get out! You're yellow, not red," taunted back Tinker.

With a whizz the bat flew from Meyers' hard and he followed it toward Tinker. Joe only started to laugh, as players and umpires rushed between him and the angry redskin. Meyers had made two singles that day that scored runs, but he was banished from the game for his display of temper and the substitute batter struck out.

VIOLIN REMEDIES SORE ARM

Dickinson College Player Regains Use of Wing by Constant Practice on Musical Instrument.

Attributing his "come-back" as a pitcher to playing a violin, Fred Goodhart of Dickinson college baseball nine, is for the first time since the summer of 1910 in good physical shape. His arm is without any trace of the soreness which handicapped him for six seasons.

Goodhart, until 1910, had been making a record when his right arm developed a lameness which massaging and the usual remedies could not relieve. He quit baseball and entered Dickinson college. In 1915 Goodhart was able to twirl one game—that against Bucknell—which he won. His arm was so lame afterward that he was dropped from the squad.

During the past winter Goodhart, in his spare time, has been playing a violin with a local orchestra, which required much practicing. He fully believes that in the extended arm motion required in playing lies the secret of his recovery.

AN OBEDIENT SON

By ELEANOR MARSH

Caspar von Frauenhofen was a remarkably steady young man, brought up under the German patriarchal system of obedience to his parents.

Herr von Frauenhofen gave out through friends in different localities that he would like them to be on the lookout for a woman with a fortune who would be willing, for the sake of adding a von to her name, to marry his son. In time word came from an old friend that he knew of such a woman, Gretchen Hauck, but she was personally very unattractive. Her teeth were bad, some of them having been lost and not replaced artificially; she was lame and limped when she walked; hair grew on her chin.

Caspar's parents now began to endeavor to persuade him to accept this woman whose fortune was represented to be large enough to enable him to go to the capital with a view to soliciting some government position. Unfortunately the young man had met and fallen in love with the daughter of a wine manufacturer, and the idea of marrying instead a repulsive woman even with a fortune was more than even his filial education would stand.

Now, Amelia Schlotter, the girl Caspar loved and who returned his love, was a young person of resource. She lived near the woman who had offered to exchange her marks for a von and, going there, spent some time in learning all about her. A letter came to Herr von Frauenhofen from Gretchen Hauck that before marrying Caspar she would like to look him over; but, realizing that he was not plentifully supplied with cash, she would not put him to the expense of making the journey. She had friends in Stuttgart, where he lived, and was intending to make them a visit. During this visit she would call at the Von Frauenhofens and make their acquaintance.

The evening before Fraulein Schlotter's visit Caspar said goodby to Amelia, who told him that she would rather relinquish him than have him constantly blaming himself for having married her in opposition to his parents' will, and they parted. Caspar reluctantly promising her that he would obey them.

The next day a carriage drove up to the Von Frauenhofens' modest residence. Frau von Frauenhofen went to the door to receive the guest, making an excuse that she would not think of leaving her on her arrival in the hands of a servant. The truth was that the Von Frauenhofens could not afford to keep a servant. Frau von Frauenhofen helped the visitor from her carriage, who then hobbled into the house, supported by a cane.

Even the father and the mother were shocked at the lady's appearance. She had chosen an hour for her call between daylight and dark when they would not get a well defined view of her, and Frau von Frauenhofen suspected that she had chosen the time for this very purpose. When the frau proposed to light the lamps the visitor objected on the ground that a bright light hurt her eyes.

Caspar stood looking at his proposed bride with indifference, for the loss of Amelia to him absorbed all his thoughts, and if he must give her up one woman was the same to him as another. After some chat the fraulein said to Herr von Frauenhofen:

"This is a business transaction. There is no pretense to love on either side. I have had a hard time in making up my mind with regard to it and if I go back home without having been married I shall probably give it up. I am ready for the ceremony now, but if not now I cannot promise for the future."

The three Von Frauenhofens withdrew to another room for consultation. Herr von Frauenhofen was strongly in favor of acting on the principle that a fortune in the hand is better than one in some other person's possession. Frau von Frauenhofen was sympathetic with her son and left the matter to him. He told them that he had made up his mind to obey them, and it mattered not when the ceremony was performed. This settled it, and they returned to the waiting woman. A minister was sent for, and the two were made one.

No sooner were they man and wife than the bride asked to be shown to a private room for a few minutes. When she returned she was transformed into Amelia Schlotter. The black had been washed off her teeth, a hairy skin pulled off her chin, and her cane had been discarded. All looked at her in wonder, and Caspar started forward to clasp her in his arms.

"Let me explain," she said to him, and then to his parents she added:

"We Germans are nothing if not obedient to our parents. Knowing that your son would be always miserable if he disobeyed you, I conceived this imposition. But I am happy to inform you that I have learned that the bride intended for your son is not so rich as stated. My father is wealthier than is supposed and has given me a dowry equal to Fraulein Hauck's possessions."

At this Caspar started forward again, but his bride forced him to give preference to his mother, who embraced her. A little later all got into the carriage in which Gretchen Hauck had come and were driven to Herr Schlotter's, where a wedding feast had been prepared in expectation of a happy issue of Amelia's scheme.

AUGUSTINE BIRRELL.

BIRRELL TO GO TO IRELAND TO TAKE CHARGE OF SITUATION.

London, April 29.—With unsatisfactory news still coming from Ireland Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, has announced intention of going to the scene of the recent revolt to take charge of the situation there.

Mr. Birrell and Mr. Asquith are warmly criticised by the press for lax methods that permitted the Sinn Feiners to arm and rise against the government. "Colossal blunder," says the Daily Mail describing governmental looseness with Ireland. The Times demands open publicity as the cure for existent troubles.

Quite Welcome.

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF New York, County of Ulster.—The Thrift, plaintiff, against Asa F. Smith unmarried, Elsie M. Hodge, Charles C. Sloane and Margaret M. Sloane, his wife defendants. Notice of sale.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale made and entered in the above entitled action, bearing date the 14th day of April, one thousand nine hundred sixteen I, the undersigned the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the front door of the county court house in the city of Kingston, county of Ulster and state of New York, on the 21st day of May, 1916, at twelve o'clock noon, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot or tract of land situate in Belle Ayr Mountain in the village of Pine Hill, town of Shandaken, county of Ulster and state of New York, which said tract of land was formerly (in 1774) part of great lot number 8 of Hardenburg patent later (1837) known as parts of lots numbers 87-88 and the west half of lot number 99 in Bauchard Lanssett tracts and which aforesaid tract of land hereby conveyed is bounded and described as follows. Beginning at a stake and stone on the west side of a small stream corner of a tree, and running thence south fifty-five degrees east twelve hundred and fifty feet to the northwesterly corner of a plot of three acres, heretofore conveyed by said Smith to Charles C. Sloane, running thence southwesterly at right angles with said last mentioned line and along said Sloane's northeasterly boundary two hundred and eight feet, eight and one half inches, thence southeasterly at right angles with said last mentioned line, and along said Sloane's southwesterly boundary six hundred and twenty-six feet one and one half inches, thence northeasterly at right angles with said last mentioned line and along said Sloane's southeasterly boundary two hundred and eight feet eight and one half inches to the northeasterly boundary line of Grovesmont, thence south along said northeasterly boundary line thirteen hundred forty-one feet four and one half inches to a heap of stones around a small birch tree; thence south thirty five degrees west eighteen chains and fifty links to a heap of stones, thence north fifty-five degrees west fifty chains to a yellow birch tree near the brook above mentioned and thence down the same, as it runs and winds and turns northerly twenty-two chains ten links to the place of beginning. Containing ninety-six and one-quarter acres more or less. Being except said three acres thereof conveyed to said Sloane; the same premises conveyed to said Smith by Truman Judd and others by deed dated September 24, 1894, recorded in Ulster county clerk's office in liber 319 of deeds at page 350 on September 26, 1894.

Also all the right, which was there conveyed to said Smith to pipe and draw water from other adjacent lands then belonging to the grantors of said deed of September 24, 1894.

Excepting however from the premises above described all those two lots or pieces of land situated at Grovesmont on Belle Ayr Mountain south of the village of Pine Hill, in the town of Shandaken county of Ulster and state of New York severally bounded and described as follows:

One beginning at the southeasterly corner boundary of the land of Charles C. Sloane at Grovesmont, and running thence southwesterly in a straight line along said Sloanes southern boundary line two hundred and eight feet eight and one-half inches to the southwesterly corner of said Sloane's land, thence easterly and southerly in a true curve of three hundred and sixty-five feet radius about five hundred feet to the point seventy five feet southwesterly in a straight line (parallel with said Sloane said southern line) from the southwesterly corner boundary of the so-called "Hiram Robinson Farm" (said curved line being at the nearest point fifty feet from the southwest boundary line of said Robinson Farm) and running along the easterly border of a proposed road to run from Grovesmont avenue to and beyond Fern Spring, as shown on a map thereof made by William B. Peters surveyor dated 1896 and in possession of said Smith, and thence northeasterly on said parallel line seventy five feet to the easterly boundary line of said Grovesmont and thence at right angles with said last mentioned line along said boundary line between said Grovesmont and Robinson Farm about four hundred and forty two feet to the place of beginning.

Containing about one acre of land with right of way to said Brown and his family and household over said proposed road when finished and also over Grovesmont avenue to and along the northerly side of said Sloanes northerly boundary line through in opening in the wall on to said [illegible].

The other of said two lots beginning at a point on the southeasterly boundary line of said Grovesmont nine hundred and fifty feet southwesterly from the southeasterly corner boundary of said Grovesmont and running thence northwesterly at right angles with said boundary line two hundred eight feet and one half inches, thence southwesterly parallel with said boundary line two hundred eight feet eight and one-half inches, thence southeasterly at right angles with said last mentioned line two hundred eight feet and eight and one half inches to the said southerly boundary line, and thence northeasterly along said boundary line two hundred eight feet eight and one half inches to the place of beginning.

Containing one acre with one spring of water under or near two large yellow birch trees not far from the center thereof.

The premises above described and sought to be foreclosed herein are subject to the following easement contained in liber [illegible] of conveyances page [illegible]. With perpetual right to place and maintain a one inch pipe from said spring hereby conveyed by one reasonable direct route across over through or under said Grovesmont to or near the site of certain proposed buildings of said party of the second part to the aforesaid release and the perpetual right to such parts his heirs assigns agents servants, employes grantees and the occupants of the premises of the said parts to enter upon the property covered by the aforesaid mortgage sought to be foreclosed herein to replace or repair such pipe or to perform any necessary work in and about said pipe and the premises over which it shall run for such maintenance.

The premises covered by the mortgage sought to be foreclosed herein are also subject to the Millerton Iron Company's right of way as recorded in the Ulster county clerk's office so far as said right of way may affect it at all said premises or any part thereof.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 29, 1916.

Shakespearean students who are celebrating the tercentenary of the play-author's birth this week are not disturbed by the decision rendered by a Chicago judge within a few days that Shakespeare's plays were not written by Shakespeare, but that Bacon was their author. In true Chicagoan style an alderman of the lake city has introduced an ordinance to change the name of Shakespeare avenue to Bacon avenue. About the only ruffle created by either occurrence was a mild statement by a Shakespearean student in New York to the effect that the Chicago judge, himself a follower of the Baconian cult, was prejudiced. Without entering on the merits of the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy, it is easy to see where the Chicago judge establishes a precedent for judicially establishing, at least to the satisfaction of the judges themselves, questions which in the future are apt to arise in the literary world. Most of the legal proceedings relating to dead men are for the purpose of determining whether they were competent to make wills which did not mention disgruntled relatives. For practical purposes wills may be classed as literature. Letters of public men naturally come under that classification, but their authenticity usually is questioned during the lifetime of the writer and after they have made an unexpected but pertinent public appearance. Would it not be a good plan for several hundred men each to claim his grandfather was the bona fide author of the Declaration of American Independence and then start a suit to test the various claims, using the Chicago judge's decision on Shakespeare as a precedent for getting into court?

Artists always depict George Washington's firm lips closed tight. His face never wears a smile and never is he shown in the act of having a reflective attitude. For this reason his countenance wears habitually an expression of loftiness which is borne out by the character of the man, although it is extremely improbable that he was always aloof and that his face never showed animation. That Washington at times was in fact animated may be deduced from a letter written by his dentist, which also may throw some light on his closed lips, the letter forming an interesting part of the Dental Exhibition just held in Philadelphia, where a set of false teeth once worn by the Father of his Country were put on exhibition. According to the dentist's letter, the teeth were very black when he received them and the color was occasioned, he tells Washington, "either by your soaking them in port wine or by your drinking it. Port wine being sower (sour), takes all the polish, and all acids have a tendency to soften every kind of teeth and bone." Therefore, he advised Washington to take out his teeth when drinking port. History says nothing about Washington's teeth or his port wine habits. Modern history is different; it tells us about Theodore Roosevelt's teeth, as though pictures were insufficient, and William Jennings Bryan has widely advertised his own grape juice proclivities. The exploring historian may yet be able to tell us why Washington appears never to have smiled and whether chagrin over the condition of his teeth had anything to do with it.

No matter where one's sympathies may be, treachery causes a revulsion of feeling in the human mind and the wretch who is guilty is meted condemnation which in every sense is deserved. Snakes are despised by mankind who never heard the story of Adam's fall, and snake charmers in actual life are tolerated only for their novelty, but are not admired. When treachery takes the form of treason, the traitor becomes the object of scorn not only among his own people but among those to whom he would barter his country. Judas Iscariot is not a popular figure in history and before Judas's time the history of the world indicates a loathsome abhorrence for treachery in every form. So today the world condemns Sir Roger Casement, who was captured by British authorities while engaged in an expedition attempting to land German munitions in Ireland, where discontent had been fomented skillfully by German agents. Sir Roger's action in trying, as he believed, to help Ireland is no different from the adventures of scores of other Irishmen whose nobility of purpose has not been questioned, but the abhorrent feature of his act lies in the fact that he attacks the mother country at a time when she is engaged in a vital struggle after having for years accepted many emoluments and honors at her hands. Had he become an anti-government factionalist at any time before war was declared, fighting to either free Ireland or for a change in the British government, his position would be different, but he waited until after the war started before going to Berlin with proposals to weaken the government which he had been serving until that time. His failure of success in Berlin led to his being despised there. Had he succeeded, however, the fate of Benedict Arnold would have been before him. The French have a saying that gratitude is not the greatest of virtues but ingratitude is the greatest of vices. Human nature has evolved the same philosophy but the French have expressed it best. For the services he has rendered humanity it is to be hoped the report that Sir Roger is mentally unbalanced will prove true.

The minister, not being acquainted with the family, was uncertain how to work out the obituary. Waiting for the bereaved widow, he piled his questions to Johnny. The Irishman Escapes.

An Irishman passed a shop where a notice was displayed saying that everything was sold by the yard. Thinking to play a joke on the shopman, he entered and asked for a 7-yard of milk.

The shopman, not in the least aback, dipped his finger in a bowl of milk and drew a yard long on the counter.

The Irishman, not wishing to be caught in his own trap, asked the price.

"Five cents," said the shopman.

"All right. Bowl it up; I'll take it."

An Appropriate Alteration.

In his later years Frederick William, King of Prussia, was sorely afflicted with gout. The twinges of pain aggravated his naturally irascible temper. During the attacks he was accustomed to divert his mind by painting. His models were always soldiers. In this relation the Germans tell a story.

One day he kept a tall grenadier posing for a long time. At length the picture was finished. The king turned to the man and, in a terrible voice, said:

"What do you think of that?"

"The cheeks are redder than mine," was the hesitating response.

"I'll soon fix that!" roared the old king.

He seized his brush and painted both cheeks of the terrified grenadier a brilliant red.—New York World.

The Child.

A Cornell professor and his wife were entertaining at dinner a few weeks ago. In the midst of the gayety at the table a child's voice was heard coming from the floor above.

"Mother!" he cried.

"What is it, Archie?" she asked.

"There's only clean towels in the bathroom. Shall I start one?"—Ithaca Journal.

Pleads for Officer.

Case and Comment tells good stories about judges, lawyers and courts. One of the latest is the following: "Is that the officer who arrested you?" His Honor inquired of Mose Hanibel, an old negro whitewash artist, arrested for assault. "I can't rekkerlect," answered the prisoner. "Sure, I arrested him, Judge," put in O'Flynn with indignation; "he knows it, too." "Take a good look at him, Moses," insisted Judge Broyles; "isn't that face familiar?" The negro squinted long and scowlingly at his accuser. "Now dat I uses mo' keer, Judge," he said, "pears like dey is somethin' familyus erbout dat face, but dis yere worl' is so full ob nacherally ugly folks, jes' an ordinary man kaint always tell de diffuence betwix' 'em. Dat's him, Judge, dat's him. * * * but he ez easy ez yo' kin on him, kase he got a wife an' fo' chillun."

His Bird a Rabbit.

James, haled before the bench, was charged with poaching. It was a mistake on the part of the police, and James was indignant. Quivering with rage he denied that he had ever, on this or any other occasion, shot a bird out of season or belonging to someone else. "Oh, I say now!" protested the magistrate. "Do you mean to tell me you have never in your whole life poached a bird?" "Yes, I do, sir!" answered James with conviction. "Never in my life have I shot a bird that I hadn't a right to—never, except once, and that was a rabbit what I clumped over the head with a stick."—Rochester Times.

THOSE FAIR STREET ORDERS.

Board of Public Works Made a Most Annoying Blunder.

At the meeting of the board of public works on Friday afternoon it was brought out that the property owners along Fair street were incensed over the peremptory notice sent them by the board to relay sidewalks and gutters and make new water, sewer and gas connections within ten days, or the board would have the work done at the owner's expense.

Members of the board acknowledged that some one had made a "bull" in writing the notice as it had not been intended to be a peremptory notice, but simply as a warning to property-owners that Fair street was to be repaired and that it would be better for the owner to make any new connections that might be necessary before the work on the street was completed. The board after it has had a street repaired will have to be furnished with an exceptionally good reason before it will grant any permit to dig up the street after it has been repaired. It was decided to have new notices printed and sent out.

One feature of the notice that was sent out was that it was dated April 21 and in some cases was not mailed to property owners until April 26, too late for delivery until next day, which left but two or three days of the ten days allowed for the property owner to have the work done.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1578—Ladies' Dress With Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths—A Good Style for House or Afternoon Wear.

For morning wear this style will be nice in linen, percale, gingham, poplin or flannelette. It will also make a good business suit in serge or gabardine and is a splendid style for taffeta, velvet or crepe. The waist is full below the square yoke portions, and its fronts are crossed in surplice style. The sleeve is close fitting in wrist length. The short sleeve has a neat turnback cuff. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 6½ yards of 36 inch material. The skirt measures about 3¾ yards at its lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

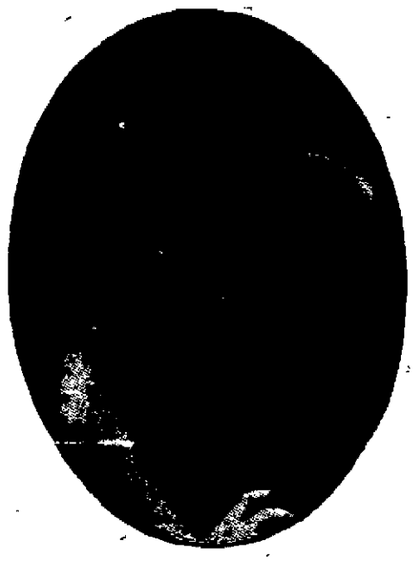
Re-Creation



Just that. No one who heard Helen Clark sing with her Diamond Disc records at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday night can find any other adequate word for Edison's wonderful achievement.

The EDISON Diamond Disc

THOMAS A. EDISON has spent five years and over two million dollars in research work to accomplish the actual and vivid Re-Creation of music as distinguished from its mechanical and only approximate reproduction. His work accomplished, it was characteristic of the man that he should invite the unheard of test of having artists sing in comparison with his re-creation of their voices. Numerous great artists have participated in these tests. On Thursday night, Miss Helen Clark, the celebrated concert contralto, appeared before more than seven hundred music lovers of this city.

They Could Not Distinguish

Face to face with Miss Clark, it was only by watching her lips that they could tell whether they were hearing the radiant woman on the stage before them—or Edison's Re-Creation of her beautiful voice.

What Will You Have in Your Music Room?

This wonderful new invention—or one of the mechanical devices for the reproduction of sound, which we have learned to call talking machines?

Will you come and hear for yourself? Edison already has nearly one thousand examples of his new art of Re-Creating music. His laboratories are producing new selections weekly. No voice, no form of music is beyond him. The entire field of music is at the command of Edison's wondrous new art.

THIRTY TIMES A FIREMAN

Lamar Crawford, brave fire laddie, who is an honorary member of thirty fire companies in New York state and New Jersey, has been made an honorary member of Weiner Hose of this city and is daily on the streets eagerly looking for a conflagration to conquer. Mr. Crawford is now advocating the installation of first aid kits on all fire trucks and is making an endeavor to have them installed in the many companies of which he is a member. Mr. Crawford is well known by all firemen in Kingston having been a visitor to the various fire stations before taking up his residence in this city.

A member of thirty fire companies is a record to be proud of and few are afforded the opportunity to belong to more than one company. However, Mr. Crawford, with his congenial manner and winning smile, has been made a member of many companies. When asked as to the companies to which he belonged he furnished a list of the many fire departments honored by having his name on their honor roll. The fire departments in New York state to which he belongs according to the list furnished are:

Honorary member of Beacon Engine Company, W. H Mase Hook and Ladder Company of Beacon; Honorary member of Hose Company No. 3 of Coxsackie; Honorary Foreman of Union Town Hose, No. 2, of Hastings; Honorary member of Weiner Hose of Kingston; Honorary member, Huguenot Engine Company, New Rochelle; Honorary member Rye fire department, Pontingoe hose and hook and ladder companies; Honorary member R. A. Snyder Hose Company, Saugerties; Honorary member of Fire Company No. 1, Tallmans.

Mr Crawford's membership in New Jersey is more extensive than in this state, he being honorary member of the following departments: Kenney Hose of Butler; Kiel Hook and Ladder of Butler; Fire Company No. 2 of Edgewater; Taylorville fire company, Fort Lee; Paunpeck Hose Company North Bergen; Engine No. 1, of Pompton Lakes; Westside Hose, No. 2, of Shrewsberry Township and Clifton Hose of Weehawken. Many have made him honorary president among them being Hose Company No. 1 of Bogota, Homestead Engine Company of North Bergen, Peerless Hose, No. 3 of North Bergen, Excelsior Hook and Ladder of North Bergen, Overlook Engine Company of North Bergen North Bergen Volunteer Firemen's Co-operative League, Hook and Ladder n. 1, of Pompton Lakes, Baldwin Hose of Weehawken.

Other fire companies to which he belongs and regularly visits are: Honorary chief of the Dundee Lake Volunteer Fire Department, Honorary foreman of Grand View Hook and Ladder of Fair View, Honorary Chief of Oakland Fire Department, Honorary Chief of Rumsey fire department and Honorary vice-president of Lispatch Hook and Ladder

Without a doubt Mr. Crawford with a membership in all of these departments holds a record as a joiner of fire companies. Mr. Crawford spends a great deal of his time in going from one company to another and at present is in our midst.

REAL ESTATE SALES.

Wurts Street Baptist Church.

The congregation of this church have been considering the hour of holding the second service, putting it at 4:30 in the afternoon, instead of the evening, thinking that a larger number would be accommodated. But on further consideration they have concluded it best not to make any change. The services will therefore be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., the usual hour, and Dr. Fuller is expected to preach at both services.

Famous Bell Ringer.

At the musical service at St. James's M. E. Church Sunday night, Emil Closs, the famous Swiss hand bell ringer, will render a fine program of sacred music. Almost a year ago Mr. Closs delighted a very large audience at St. James's Church, and no doubt the church will be crowded on Sunday night. Dr. Baragwanath, the pastor, will deliver a brief address on a timely topic.

Pasteurized Milk.

The editor of the American Medicine warns his readers against too much faith in pasteurized milk. He says experiments prove that the pasteurized milk is more liable to reinfection than raw milk and should therefore be used as soon as possible. Carelessly handled in transportation or in the home, it quickly collects bacteria and becomes highly dangerous to health.

LIGHT HOUSE KEEPERS' PENSION

Two bills of immense importance to the employes of the lighthouse service were passed by the senate on Wednesday. The first authorizes the secretary of commerce to increase the salary of all lighthouse keepers from $600 to $700 per annum; the second provides for the voluntary retirement with pension of lighthouse keepers who have reached the age of 65 and the compulsory retirement at the age of 70.

Four years ago provision was made for retiring employes of the revenue cutter service and two years ago employes of the life saving service.

The lighthouse keepers have been getting a salary of $600 per year and a ration estimated at 30 cents a day.

They are to be retired at the age of 65 if they desire, and at the age of 70 by compulsion, upon a pension of one-fortieth of the pay they receive at the time of retirement, for each year of their service. Thus, if a keeper is retired at the age of 70, when his salary was $700 per year, after being in the service 20 years, his pension would be twenty-fortieths of $700 or $350 per year, or if he had only been in the service 10 years he would get ten-fortieths of $700, or $175 per annum.

The bill now goes to the house. It has the endorsement of the department of commerce.

No color seems too gay for the sport outfit of this season, for here is shown a flame colored flannel coat and grey and white striped skirt. The effect is really exceptionally smart. The stripes running crosswise in the skirt proves a notable detail. The coat is a snappy model featuring a patent leather belt fastened at the waistline. The high roll collar, patch pockets and cuffed sleeves are distinctive details. Smart buttoned boots and a cretonne hat complete the outfit.

One Way of Smoking a Cigar.

We in this country might conceivably manage to survive if our supply of cigars were cut off. It would be a much greater blow to other nations, kindreds and peoples—the natives of the Rand, for example—who are so crazy over their cigars that they put the lighted end in the mouth to make them last the longer.—London Standard.

Removing Tires With Clothespins.

Single clinch bicycle tires may be quickly removed by means of an ordinary clothespin. Separate the prongs of the clothespin until it splits. The larger piece may be used in prying the bead of the tire away from the hooped edge of the rim and also for lifting it over the edge. Use the other prong to prevent slipping back into the curve of the rim.—Popular Science Monthly.

Stick Insects of Borneo.

The longest known insect is undoubtedly the stick insect of Borneo. Specimens thirteen inches in length have been captured. It is an interesting example of mimetic coloring, resembling in a remarkable manner a piece of rough stick. On the bough of a tree it is extremely difficult to distinguish between the insect and the bark.

EDWIN MILTON ROYLE, author of "The Unwritten Law," "The Squaw Man," etc., says:

"Beatriz Michelena's work on the witness stand in 'The Unwritten Law' is the most real and convincing emotion I have seen in picture art. Real grief, as we know, is grotesque and distressing, if not ludicrous, but Miss Michelena's is so restrained, so free from exaggeration, that it approaches artistic perfection. It is a great triumph." "The Unwritten Law" is shown in seven acts.

WASHING EXPERTS

That is the sort of a woman you want to do the washing for your family, so, whenever you are looking for a laundress, the place to look for her is in The Freeman Want Columns.

Don't let anyone tell you differently, for, if you go to the best housewives, you will learn that they are the ones who engage their help in all lines, especially their laundresses, through The Freeman Want Ads.

Just try the experiment of a Freeman Want Ad laundress this month of April and you will never get any other kind.

COUNTY COURT NOTICE.

The People of the State of New York, to the Sheriff of the County of Ulster, Greeting: You are hereby commanded to summon the several persons who shall have been drawn in your county, to serve as jurors at a County Court, to be held in and for your county, at the Court House, in the City of Kingston, in said county, on Monday, the 22nd day of May, 1916, to appear thereat, to bring before the said court all prisoners then being in the jail of your county, together with all processes and proceedings any way concerning them in your hands, and make proclamation in manner prescribed by law, notifying all persons bound to appear at the said court by recognizance or otherwise, to appear thereat, and requiring all Justices of the Peace, Coroners, and other officers who have taken recognizance for the appearance of any person at such court, or who have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness, to return such recognizances, inquisitions and examinations to the court at the opening thereof on the first day of its sitting.

Witness, Hon. James Jenkins, Esquire, County Judge of Ulster County, at the Court House in Kingston, this 21st day of April, 1916.

F. G. TRAVER,
District Attorney.

PROCLAMATION.—State of New York, Ulster County, ss.: The undersigned, Sheriff of said County, in conformity to a precept in this behalf directed and delivered, by this his proclamation, requires all persons bound to appear at the County Court, to be held in and for the said County of Ulster, at Kingston, in said county, on Monday, the 22nd day of May, 1916, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, by recognizance or otherwise, to appear thereat. And he requires all Justices of the Peace, Coroners and other officers, who have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at said court, or who have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any person or witness, to return such recognizances, inquisitions and examinations to the said court at the opening thereof on the first day of its sitting.—Signed at the sheriff's office in said county April 21, 1916.

E. T. SHULTIS,
Sheriff of Ulster County.

WHAT WILL BE DONE WITH THE STRAND?

Problem of Repairing Discussed by B. P. W.—Trolley Road Would Prefer to Have Repairs Laid Over a While—Other Matters.

For some time past Commissioner John R. Tammany of the board of public works has been advocating repairs to the Strand from the present brick pavement to Kingston Point, and on Friday afternoon a special meeting of the board was held at the city hall to consider the matter. Superintendent Richard O'Sullivan of the Ulster & Delaware railroad and Superintendent G. Burton TeBow of the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company, were present at the meeting at the invitation of the board. Commissioner Tammany was unable to be present as the funeral of a relative was held that afternoon.

It was brought out at the meeting that the board has been considering two plans for repairing the street. The first was to pave with brick from the present brick pavement where the U. & D. crosses the Strand to the second crossing of the U. & D. in Ponckhockie, a total of a trifle over 1,100 feet, and to macadamize the remainder of the road to Kingston Point. Another plan was to relay with brick to the end of the present cobble stone pavement, a distance of about 700 feet and then to macadamize the remainder of the road.

The board also intends taking up the 700 feet of cobble stone pavement on the Strand and relay it on the Hasbrouck avenue hill.

It was expained to Messrs. TeBow and O'Sullivan that the reason they had been invited to meet with the board was to ascertain how the railroad companies stood on the matter of repairing the Strand.

Mr. O'Sullivan said the matter had not been taken up officially with his company and he was therefore not in a position to state the company's attitude as the matter had not been discussed.

Mr. TeBow called the attention of the board to the fact that it would cost the trolley road in the neighborhood of $5,000 for relaying new ties and rails and paying the cost of the road's assessment for repairing the street, and that the company not knowing that such work was contemplated by the board had made no provision for it. He suggested that in the future the board should make an effort to lay out its street work in the winter, which would make it easier not only for the trolley road but others to make plans accordingly. He said that his company was willing and anxious to work in conjunction with the city.

The board informed him that it had already planned to lay out street work in the winter in the future.

Mr. O'Sullivan then asked, stated that it would also cost the U. & D. considerable money if a permanent pavement was laid down.

After some further discussion the board instructed City Engineer Codwise to make a survey of the street and submit an estimate of the probable cost of the work or other material to be used, at Friday afternoon's meeting when representatives of the trolley road and railroad would be present.

Dunn Street to be Oiled.

On motion of Commissioner Everett it was decided that when Abeel street is oiled that Dunn street from Abeel street to Wilbur avenue be oiled at the same time.

Blackstone on Wall Street.

After considerable discussion the board awarded C. Gordon Reel a contract to supply the city with his road composition known as Blackstone to be laid on Wall street between Maiden Lane and Henry street which is now undergoing repairs. The probable cost of the material Mr. Reel estimated at about $800. This does not include the cost of laying it.

Discussion of Street Force.

A discussion of the work of the street force followed and some of the commissioners said that some men who applied for work on the street force seemed to work only with the idea of doing the least amount of work possible for the city. Commissioner Dederick said that he knew one man that had to be watched closely for several minutes to see whether he moved or not.

Commissioner Burgevin called attention to the fact that merchants on Wall street were anxious to have that street flushed at night instead of during the day time. No action was taken on the request.

It was brought out that to keep the present brick pavement swept clean cost the city about $7,000 a year.

Taxpayer Writes.

A lengthy communication was read from a resident signing himself "Taxpayer," calling attention to the condition of Cedar street and the need of repairs. It was filed.

Ordered to Lay Walk.

The board passed a resolution ordering Mrs. Lundy to lay a sidewalk in front of her property on Railroad avenue.

A discussion followed regarding the condition of the walk on the West Shore railroad property and the board decided to request the railroad to lay either a stone sidewalk or one of concrete along railroad avenue from the station to Broadway.

Codwise Reports.

City Engineer Codwise submitted a report showing the probable cost of laying a new twelve inch sewer in Pearl street. He estimated the cost at $3,414.41. The report was filed.

After some further discussion the board adjourned to next Friday afternoon.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

When I throw in my clutch the car jumps forward with a bound upon starting. Can you tell me what might be the cause of this and how the trouble can be eliminated?

Your clutch is too harsh. When starting from a standstill you should let the clutch in slowly. If you have a metal to metal clutch treat it with a mixture of graphite and oil. If it is a leather faced clutch then treat the leather with castor oil or neatsfoot oil. In the latter case the oil should be soaked into the leather for a few hours at least.

There is a very bad knock when the motor of my car is running fast without much load, but as soon as it strikes a hill or sand and the motor has to pull the knock stops. This is not the bearings, as they have been tested twice. Could the knock be caused by a piston slap or wrist pin? If not, what is it?

It is probably an ignition knock, and it is evident that you do not advance the spark far enough when running at speed. This is borne out by the fact that when the engine is slowed down somewhat under load the knock ceases, indicating that the engine speed is then brought down to a point where it is in accord with the time of ignition. If your trouble persists try bending the timer control rod slightly. This runs from the steering column to the commutator at the front of the engine. Bending it will shorten it a little, thus advancing the spark. Or you could bend the spark lever a little inward toward the center of the car, this also serving to advence the control.

If it were a bearing knock it would be accentuated when the car was pulling. It is barely possible that it is a piston slap, but that is more remote than the possibility of ignition knock.

Can you tell me how to eliminate a noise occurring in the differential of my car and how to adjust it so that I will not have to buy a new gear?

The only adjustment of the rear axle gears necessary is to obtain the proper mesh of the two driving gears. If these get out of proper adjustment there will be an excessive humming noise in the rear axle.

To adjust the gears remove the plate at the top rear of the driveshaft housing. Turn the adjusting collar by placing a tool in one of the small holes through the collar, turning the collar to the right meshes the gears tighter. It is a good plan to make this adjustment while driving the car on a smooth road.

My car has been thoroughly overhauled by an expert, but it is very hard to start and hasn't much power. The water pump does not seem to work well because the radiator and engine get hot after running six or seven miles. Oil comes through the valves, and the engine is very hard to start when cold, but when warmed up it is easy. Should I get a set of spark plugs equipped with priming cups?

Priming plugs might help in getting started. It is likely that the cylinders are somewhat out of round and should have been rebored. This is borne out by the fact that oil gets past the pistons, and if the pistons and rings have been overhauled properly it would seem that the trouble is in the cylinders themselves. Leakage past the pistons would account for the lack of power also. The water pump might be out of order, but that is a thing which is easy to determine. See that the water piping is not clogged and that the rubber hose connections are in good shape. The lack of power might also be due to improper adjustment or action of the carbureter.

Would you advise burning off present paint on car in order to have change of color from deep navy to gray without varnish? Could finish be kept clean more easily without varnish?

If you have not had any experience in burning off paint do not risk a good car in order to learn how to do it. If you are skillful with the use of the torch burning is the most thorough way to remove the paint.

Regarding which finish is easier to keep clean, it is just as easy to keep an unvarnished surface clean as a varnished one. The only difference is that a varnished surface has a polished effect, whereas the unvarnished is dull and not so delicate.

After running twelve or fourteen miles my car sometimes bucks and slows down and on opening the cutout the missed charge sheets out in a flame. What causes this?

From your description the trouble might be due to sticking valves, sticking air valve in the carbureter rendering the mixture too rich temporarily, a short circuit in some part of the ignition system or a number of other causes. It would seem, however, that the first two mentioned are the most probable. You should see that your valves are correctly timed and that the clearance between the lifters and stems is about the thickness of a visiting card. You should also make sure that there is no possibility of your auxiliary air valve sticking and shutting off the supply of air temporarily.

How does horsepower, as applied in mechanics, compare with the horsepower of a horse? In other words, how do they measure horsepower?

The rate at which an engine does work is often measured in units called a horsepower, one horsepower being work done to the extent of thirty-three foot pounds per minute, supposed to represent the maximum rate at which work could be done by a horse. Work done by an engine may mean either of two things—namely, the total work done by the engine, or the effective work done by the engine. Both kinds of work are obtained by calculation. The total work is called the indicated horsepower. The useful or effective work is that which remains of the total work after a deduction has been made of the work necessary to overcome the frictional resistance due to bearings and other working parts. This useful work is called brake horsepower.

In measuring the indicated horsepower of a motor there are several factors to be considered—pressure on the piston in pounds per square inch, the area of the piston in square inches, the stroke in feet and number of strokes per minute. The product of these divided by 33,000 will give the indicated horsepower.

I have a friend who cleans carbon out with salt. He runs his engine two or three minutes to warm up, then removes the spark plugs and puts one and one-half normal salt tablets in each cylinder and then runs the car about fifteen miles. By that time there is no carbon remaining in engine or valves. Will the chemical action set up by the salt and heat do any damage to the cylinders?

While salt will burn off the carbon by chemical action due to the combination of salt and carbon into sodium carbonate, it is very likely that the combination of chlorine with the hydrogen in gasoline would form hydrochloric acid, which would tend to have an intense rusting action on the cylinders.

The clutch of my car is faced with some fabric, and for the past month I have been bothered by the clutch slipping. Will you kindly suggest a remedy? The car will stand in the middle of the street on high gear and not affect the running of the engine—that is, the clutch in high will not retard the engine to any appreciative degree, although it will hold on low and second, but better in the former.

There must be something radically wrong with the particular facing on that car and I would suggest your having a new clutch facing applied. If this does not remedy the trouble there must be some interference with the clutch entering the flywheel as far as it should. Perhaps the clutch pedal is striking the floorboard, preventing it from engaging. It is very possible that heavy grease has leaked into the clutch housing and that the lining is more in need of thorough cleaning than anything else.

An unpleasant sound issues from the rear wheels of my car when traveling over twenty miles per hour, and I have found that there is a little play in one of the rear wheels. By play, I mean that when rear wheel is jacked it can be pushed in and out about one-eighth or one-fourth inch. The trouble I am sure is not beneath the hub cap, as I had tightened this nut, and I think that the differential itself must be adjusted. How can I adjust it so as to stop this ringing, grinding noise? Also, when taking off the cover of the differential I have found that the edges of teeth of the large gear have been chipped.

The lost motion in the rear axle appears to be due to worn thrust bearings. If the car will be examined by a competent mechanic it is quite certain to be noted that the differential thrust bearings are badly worn and need replacing.

This same reason may possibly be assigned to the noise about which you speak, although this may also be attributed to the condition of the ring gears and pinion. These should be examined at the same time that the thrust bearings are replaced and the differential overhauled.

After a motor is loosened from running the amount of oil required is considerably less than when the motor is new. For ordinary driving we recommend that the adjusting screw at the bottom of the pump be closed entirely and then opened three-quarters or seven-eighths of a turn. Of course if you undertake long trips or run the car under unusual conditions, such as through heavy mud and sand, more oil will be required and the adjusting screw should be opened accordingly.

Recently my car has been giving me quite a little trouble. The battery seems to be all right, but when I put my foot on the starting pedal it will not crank the motor. If I use the crank handle and turn the motor over about eight times and then use the starting pedal it works all right. Can you tell me the trouble?

It may be that there are some short circuits which drain the battery, or it may be that the generator is not charging properly. Be careful to keep the specific gravity of the electrolite in accordance with the instructions of the battery maker.

RIGID RULES FOR SCHOOL ATHLETES

Rules governing athletics at the high school, which were adopted at the meeting of the board of education Friday night, are the most rigid set of laws of the kind that have ever been drafted in the history of Kingston athletics and, with no exaggeration, the most rigid of any of the cities with which Kingston teams combat. They are a departure from the rulings which have been in force since sports got their start as providers of recreation from study and are liable to be a great hindrance to future teams because of the total exclusion of post-graduates.

The rules run: "No student shall be eligible for membership in an athletic team of the Kingston high school if such student is: (a) More than 20 years of age; (b) more than 19 years of age and has been in attendance at the Kingston high school for more than four years; (c) a post graduate.

The twenty year age limit is unquestionably a wise move. When a lad at that age is still putting in time at athletics and studies—which of course are a monor attraction for this type of lad—he should be given a few words to the effect that it is just about time he move along with bigger boys and stop being a one-sided gridiron hero, but get out in the world and start earning his own salt.

The second clause is equally strong. When a lad has put in four years trying to master the strong points of the text books and is obliged through either natural density of the cranium or sheer laziness to pursue still another and perhaps two years, as sometimes happens, he should be kept from the teams and thus be allowed to keep his nose pretty close to the school books. If he does get round shouldered while doing it, he has had four years of good sport and little study and should be given a taste of what is to come to him when he strikes the big outside world with all its proverbial hard knocks.

High school sportsters are liable to fume over the part of the rulings concerning post-graduates. Four of last season's championship football team were former graduates who returned to the high school for the extra advantages it offers by way of education, thinking of football only as a recreation. Through the work of these men, especially Captain Wheeler, did the eleven accomplish such a record as it did, starting off the athletic career of the school unblemished. The records will show that these men did work which needed no prodding on the part of the teachers. The exclusion of this class of athletes from teams will be a deep loss to the strength of sports. Although their number is never very great, the few "P. G.'s" who there are have the skill gleaned through several years in sports and are thus valuable. If the question of their scholastic ability is raised, the argument afforded by the opponents of the rule will be that they have their diplomas as proof, the result of the regular four years' work. Sometimes it requires them to devote 5 years to the high school course but this class should be excluded from the teams. But those who have done the work in four years should not be excluded, the students will in all probability argue.

The scholarship qualifications which an athlete must have, according to the new ruling, are very thorough. This law says that "in order to be eligible for an athletic team of the Kingston high school a student shall have fulfilled the following conditions:

"(a) Such student shall be pursuing in regular class at least eighteen subject hours per week and shall maintain an average of at least 75 per cent in fifteen subject hours per week, except as provided below. A weekly report shall be made by teachers to determine students eligible for athletic teams; if a student is ineligible as a result of such a report, the student shall be ineligible for one week and may be allowed to contest at the end of such time if the work in all classes is satisfactory. A student demoted in a given subject shall be considered as doing unsatisfactory work in such subject."

The remainder of the rule is about equipment and runs:

"Clothing, equipment and athletic materials purchased with the money of the High School Athletic Association shall remain the property of such association, subject to the jurisdiction of the board of education. No student shall loan to any other person not a regular member of the athletic association, nor shall any member of the athletic team wear athletic outfits in any game other than Kingston high school games.

"During all practice, in games, and on all trips outside of Kingston all players of the athletic team shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the faculty members in charge of such practices, game or trip."

The Lace Kerchief

King's Fool Plays an Important Role In a Court Romance

By S. LEVITT YEATS

Copyright by S. Levitt Yeats.

Affairs were going badly at court. I was seized with a fit of the blues, and for once, leaving Pompon, my ape, behind, made my way from the Louvre, across the river, to a little inn called the Chapeau Rouge, where the wine was old and the cookery excellent. I supped in the summer house in the garden, and when I had finished I leaned back in my seat.

A slight noise, a restrained cough, arrested my attention, and through the space between the leaves of my shelter I caught a glimpse of a face at a gable window of the inn directly overlooking me, a face that peered out for a second and was gone.

But, although the face was immediately withdrawn, I had recognized it at once. The man in the room above me was Chantonnay, the Spanish ambassador to France.

About an hour passed, and it became dusk. Then, to my surprise, three figures appeared at the door of the inn. One was the innkeeper, the other was Chantonnay, and the third was a lady, closely veiled.

Monsieur put something in mine host's hand, who bowed to the ground, and, giving his arm to his fair companion, they both left the inn together. I followed discreetly.

At the quay the pair stopped and exchanged some earnest words together, the Spaniard once laying his hand on the lady's shoulder as if to emphasize what he was saying. Finally Chantonnay sounded a low whistle, and after a moment's delay two other figures, emerging from the darkness, joined my pair. Chantonnay appeared to give them some orders, and then, bowing to the lady, he turned sharply around and began to walk back in my direction.

As I passed where the couple parted something white lying on the roadway caught my eye. I picked it up and found it was a delicate lace kerchief.

During this I had a little time to reflect, and, considering all things, I was almost forced to the conclusion that it was not quite a love affair my don was engaged in, and then somehow I began to think of my old friend, Blaise de Lorgnac. His power of rapid action would have been much to me now. It was he and I together who had checkmated the Spaniard once before. But Lorgnac was away at Marienbourg with Conde.

My apartments were in the wing of the palace overlooking the rue St. Thomas du Louvre. As I approached them I saw that the door was half open and that the room within was in light. Some one within, too, struck a chord on my lute. It was Lorgnac—Lorgnac come back!

"IT SHOULD TELL US WHO SHE IS."

"You are well?" I asked, looking into his eyes.

"As ever," he smiled back at me.

In the excitement of the moment and our meeting I had no opportunity to speak about my adventure of the evening, but at last some allusion was made to Chantonnay, and I told him the story. As I finished I pulled the kerchief from my vest pocket and threw it on the table. "Here," I said, "is the toy I picked up. And now to look at the crest and the monogram. It should tell us who she is."

I stretched out my hand, but Lorgnac was before me. "No, no! This is not your way or mine, de Besme. Why should we pry into a woman's secrets?"

"You forget I am La Fouine, the ferret, and the secret is Chantonnay's as well as hers."

He hesitated for a moment and then, insisting on his point: "Even so! Let it be, old friend."

"As you will, Sir Amadis of Gaul!" I replied, a little petulantly, putting the kerchief aside, adding: "But I will make my Spaniard dance tonight at the masque. You are, of course, coming?"

"No. I leave Paris at dawn for Marienbourg."

"Where Conde, they say, lies ill?"

"Ill, yes, but not with the fever you think. It is another kind of fever. I was taken that way once, but that is over, thank God! And, De Besme." Here he rose from his seat and began to pace the room as he continued: "Nothing would satisfy the prince but that I should ride to Paris, see her, our queen, and ride back and tell him I had done so. I was not to exchange a word. On my faith as a gentleman! I bore no message."

"And you have seen her, the queen of Scotland?"

"Yes! But she saw me, too. It was on the ladies' terrace that we met."

"Alone?"

"No! One of her tirewomen was with her, and the short of it is that I—ass and fool—have promised to bear a letter to the prince."

"You!" I burst out. "You!" And then I rose, too, and in bitter jest handed him my cap and bells.

"Be still!" he said hoarsely. "I could not say no. She is a woman and a queen."

"And Blaise de Lorgnac, seigneur of Lorgnac, of Tully, and Malezieux, knight of the King's Order, is a man of honor. And this letter—you have it?"

"Not yet. I receive it in an hour, and time presses. Au revoir!" He wrung my hand and was gone.

And so it was with a bitter heart that I sought the gay revels, so bitter that all thought of my jest on the Spaniard was gone. I stood a little apart, under the lee of a pillar of veined marble, watching hungrily for a face I longed to see. The king was there, tall and grim; the queen was there, too, and Mme. Diane in converse with the sickly young dauphin, but Mary of Scotland was not there, nor was Chantonnay. Then I suddenly caught sight of Chantonnay at the far end of the room, making his way slowly toward the king.

As Chantonnay approached I made Pompon walk gravely up to the king and salute him. "The high and mighty sieur Pompon, ambassador from Barbary, desires audience of your majesty."

"An honor that I, too, claim in the name of the most Catholic king, my master," said a haughty voice beside me as Chantonnay stepped up to the king. And then there was a suppressed titter, for Pompon turned sharply around on the Spaniard and began to jabber angrily at him.

"My ambassador is explaining to monseigneur here that he claims precedence," I went on, not heeding the don's black looks. But the king turned to me angrily.

"Peace, and a truce of your ill timed jests!" And then to Chantonnay: "Monseigneur, it is always a pleasure to hear from my cousin from Spain. You will have your audience with the morning. We hunt at Fontainebleau tomorrow. Will you accompany us?"

Chantonnay expressed his thanks and then begged permission to retire, as he had to complete a memorial he said he would present to his majesty in the morning—a memorial, as he said, of vital import to the peace and good will of two nations.

Presently I gained my pillar once again, and as I did so some one pulled me quietly by the sleeve.

I turned and saw young De Lorges, Montgomery's son, who was then a page to the dauphiness, Mary of Scotland.

"What has happened?" I said, interrupting him before he could speak.

"I do not know," he said, "but you are wanted at once. Come!" He tugged at my sleeve once more, and without another word I followed him. We left the Pavilion du Roy without notice and then went down the long corridors that led to the apartments of the dauphin. Beyond there lay those of his wife, Mary of Scotland, the "little queen," as she was called.

During all this time we exchanged no word together until at last we stopped before a door, and the boy turned to me.

"The queen's apartment," he said; "you are free to pass. I remain on guard here."

There were three people in the room. One was Mary of Scotland, standing near a table; the other was De Lorgnac, booted and spurred as if for a long journey, and the third was a young woman—a tall young woman—who was leaning against the open window, her face buried in her hands and sobbing bitterly. All this I took in at a glance as I entered, and, kneeling before my queen, said:

"Madame, I have come."

She bade me rise. "Monsieur," she said, "I have come to you for help. Once before you saved me from a great danger. I am in a greater danger now. I want your help."

"Madame! All that"—

But she interrupted me. "Lorgnac here tells me that you know of the object of his coming to Paris."

"Yes, madame!" And, in spite of myself, my voice hardened.

She saw the change and looked at me in pitiful entreaty. "Monsieur, I do not speak to you as a queen, but as a woman."

"Ah, madame, say not a word more!" I burst out. "My life is yours!" And as I spoke the girl at the window burst out into fresh weeping.

"Tell me," I said, turning to De Lorgnac, "what has happened. We waste time in talking if there is serious business afoot."

"The letter I spoke of is lost."

"Who lost it, you?"

He laughed harshly. "No; it was given by her highness to Mlle. Odou there to deliver to me in the garden below the ladies' terrace, and the short of it is that the letter is gone."

In a flash it all came to me, and I thanked God in my heart that I had looked at the kerchief. The O embroidered on it stood for Odou. I looked at the girl. She had ceased weeping as De Lorgnac spoke and was looking at him with a flushed face and dry eyes. There was not a tear in those bold black orbs. All this went through my brain like lightning as, turning to her, I said:

"Will mademoiselle tell me how it was she lost this letter?"

"Sit down, Odou!" said Mary kindly. "Sit down and tell us all you know."

"I—I lost it in the garden," she began, and then, hesitating, went on with an effort, "it was near the oak toward the riding school."

"Bien! No, mademoiselle! You will please accompany M. de Lorgnac and myself and show us the spot where you missed the letter. Come!"

"Is this all you can do?" said Mary, with a ring of despair in her voice.

"Rest assured, madame," I said, "that we will trace your letter. Come, mademoiselle!"

"What good would it be?" she began pettishly, but I interrupted her, seeing into her plan to delay matters.

"It is gone compline and time we were away." And, leaning forward, I

"WILL MADEMOISELLE TELL ME HOW IT WAS SHE LOST THE LETTER?"

whispered, "For your own sake—come."

We had a little distance to go, but at last came close to the dark, solid outline of the old oak, and Lorgnac turned to mademoiselle.

"It was here we met, mademoiselle, and you said you lost the letter."

She stood at bay, a splendid creature, her dark eyes flashing through the night. The time had come for me to play my trump card.

"Eh, bien! Mademoiselle! We do not seek to detain you. We will do the search, but let me tell you as a friend that the moment you go back you will be arrested!"

"Arrested!" said she and de Lorgnac in the same breath.

"Yes," I went on coolly. "Arrested—that is the word. Mademoiselle, you are very unfortunate in losing things. You recognize this? You lost it today, or this afternoon, rather, across the river."

With this I pulled out the kerchief and showed it to her. Lorgnac was looking at me in blank amaze, but as for the girl she made no answer, but stood there, white as a sheet, and I could hear her breathing thick and fast.

"Mademoiselle, you have forgotten how long the arm of God is. You were seen this afternoon at an inn called the Chapeau Rouge with Chantonnay. You there made your bargain with him. How he persuaded you to be a traitress, what your price was for your shame, I know not, nor care to know. But you made your bargain, and on your way back you dropped this kerchief."

She began to sob now and cry. The tears were real enough this time, and I believe she would have fallen had not Lorgnac supported her.

"Oh, have pity, have pity!" she gasped, and now I changed my note.

"Mademoiselle, you see that little cloud passing across the moon? Before it crosses I must have that letter, in my hands. If not, you know what awaits you."

With a low cry she thrust her hand into the bosom of her dress and, pulling out the letter, handed it to me with a whispered "Take it," and as my fingers closed over it I heard Lorgnac's deep "Thank God!"

* * * * * * *

We returned as we had come and regained the queen's apartment. As we entered she came running to meet us.

"The letter?" she cried.

"Madame!" And I placed it in her hands.

She looked at us two for a moment—mademoiselle had stayed in the anteroom—and she was about to hand the letter to De Lorgnac when he pointed to the tall wax candles that burned on the table.

"Madame," he said, "there is a fire there, and it leaves no trace."

She made no answer, but held the letter over the candle, and as it leaped into flame cast it into the fireplace, where it burned to a cinder.

WHITE OF THE MOON.

What Causes Fair Luna, In Its Color, to Rival Pure Snow?

The moon has no light of its own and shines through being illuminated by the sun. What sort of surface must the moon have to reflect the light so whitely as it does? This question is put forcibly in a letter to Nature from J. Evershed of Srinagar, Kashmir, who describes the moon as far whiter and more brilliant than the snow clad summits of the Himalayas when these are still lighted by the sun. He writes:

"Why does the moon appear so white if it is composed of rocks similar in reflecting power to those on the earth? The rock surface of the moon should reflect far less light than the cloudy surfaces of Venus and Jupiter, and it would be of interest if those who knew would explain the apparent whiteness of the moon as seen in daylight.

"A direct comparison of the moon with terrestrial rock surfaces illuminated by sunlight is possibly to some extent vitiated by the superimposed blue light scattered by the intervening air, which may affect the color of the moon. Yet it is very difficult to believe that this can convert the grays and browns of rock surfaces into an almost pure white.

"On several occasions in this valley I have compared the waning moon, setting behind the Pir Panjal mountains, and, of course, in full sunlight, with extensive snow fields. These snows are perhaps fifty miles distant, and there is a considerable amount of blue scattered light superposed on the snow, although less than on the moon. Also the light absorbed by the atmosphere is approximately and may be exactly the same for each if one considers the whole path of the light from sun to snow and thence to the observer. When the air is transparent enough to see the moon clearly it appears to me to be distinctly whiter than the snows, which seem dull and yellowish in comparison."

Mr. Evershed throws out the suggestion that the moon's surface may be covered with ice.

Cruel Science.

The unfortunate farm laborer was a pessimist, with reason. He had been thrown out of several jobs by the introduction of farm machinery, consequently he distrusted everything that smacked of conservation of energy. Now he stood by the kitchen table reading the labels on parcels his wife had brought home from town.

"Self raising flour," he said. "Ah, they'll be inventing self raising wheat next to throw us poor devils out of another job!"—New York Times

SOCIETY GIRLS TO SEE THEMSELVES PACK WAR KITS IN MOVIES

(Miss Angelica Brown, Packing French War Kit.)

New York, May 4.—Tonight more than 200 notable society women will gather in the Hotel Vanderbilt to see moving pictures of themselves packing war kits for French soldiers. The Executive Committee of the Lafayette Fund, which has supplied thousands of kits to French soldiers at the front has provided the films. The pictures will also show the distribution of kits to the soldiers on the firing line. It is proposed to send the pictures to other cities interested in the work.

SYMPHONY CONCERT TURNED DOWN HARD

Home Musicians Refused the Privilege That the Chautauqua From Pennsylvania Has Received From the Board of Education.

Prolonged discussion on granting permission to societies desirous of using the high school auditorium again marked the meeting of the board of education Friday evening, when the request of the Kingston Symphony Society to use the hall the middle of May for a concert and June 5, 6 and 7, for a musical festival and the Oratorio of Elijah, was refused by a vote of 5 to 1 if admission be charged. The rules committee was directed to make final rules about the use of the hall for the future. Other important matters considered at the meeting were the granting of the use of the hall for a piano recital, the report of the teachers' committee fixing the salary of teachers for the ensuing school year, commencing in September, and the adoption of rules concerning athletics and commencement speakers. All the nine trustees were present.

Following the reading of the minutes Chairman Bernstein asked that the usual procedure of business be suspended in order to allow the representatives of the Kingston Symphony Society, present, to tell the board of their educational work. Trustee Van Wagonen asked before the request be granted, if the nature of the presentation was to be a further request for the use of the high school, and Chairman Bernstein said he believed such a request would be incorporated in the statement to be made. Trustee Gill said he considered that useless as that matter was settled at the previous meeting. President Bernstein still felt that Mrs. C. N. Reed, secretary of the Symphony Society, should be given a hearing and she was given the floor.

In response to the question raised by the two trustees mentioned, Mrs. Reed stated that while the request made at the previous meeting had been denied, the request about to be made was a new request and not a repeated asking for the date now passed, that the society wished to ask for the use of the high school auditorium for its public rehearsal and concert to be given about the middle of May and for the Music Festival to be given June 5, 6 and 7, as purely educational performances. Mrs. Reed then briefly told of the movement in all large educational circles of the day, making musical appreciation—the intelligent hearing of great musical works—a part of the educational outfit of pupils of colleges and universities today. Such colleges as Harvard, Tufts, etc., can afford only instruments like the orchestrelle to present such music, giving the student no real idea of the various instruments, etc., as can be presented to the pupils of Kingston schools through the Symphony Society orchestral concerts.

In New York city the board of education has this past year hired just such an orchestra to give such educational concerts in its public schools. Mrs. Reed called attention to the giving of Haydn's Oratorio of "The Creation," at the high school auditorium last year, when there were present, counting the singers and musicians, over 1,400 persons, who received an inspiration which would go with them through life, especially the great number of school children. Only educational prices of admission were charged, ten cents for the school children, and in the evening fifty cents for adults, not a "paying" admission charge. Nor was the society in any sense a money making institution, as no member of the organization, nor the conductor, received any compensation for all the work done or from the concerts. The only money paid out was to artists. Mrs. Reed asked not only for the use of the auditorium under usual conditions, but also for the co-operation of the board of education in this work which was recognized all over the country as educational.

President Bernstein then asked Mrs. Reed if the board was to understand her as making a formal request for the use of the auditorium, and on her affirmative reply, he reminded her that if the society would be willing to give the board of education a certain per cent, however small, of the net proceeds of the concerts, for educational purposes, that would have weight in her request. Secretary Michael, promptly corrected this statement on the part of the chair, as being under a misapprehension regarding the action relative to the Chautauqua. On request, Mr. Michael then read a communication from the legislative department of the state educational department at Albany, interpreting the law relative to the Chautauqua in the following manner: If the Chautauqua could give assurance that no person or persons therein received personal gain from the performances, but on the contrary, could assure the board that "the proceeds went only for the paying of artists and legitimate expenses" there could be no reason why the request should not be granted. An affidavit from the head of the Chautauqua folowed, in accordance with the ruling.

Trustee Gill stated that there was no question raised as to the educational value of the Symphony Society concerts, etc., the question raised was their right to charge an admission, and he believed that the board had no right to countenance such discrimination against any portion of the public. In this he was supported by Trustee Gill and Hale. A warm discussion followed, finally ending in the board granting Mrs. Reed and Mr. Crosby the right to make formal written application, in accordance with the action relative to the Chautauqua.

The following written request was then presented:

The Kingston Symphony Society asks for the use of the high school auditorium for its next public rehearsal and concert to be given about the middle of May, and for the music festival to be given June 5, 6 and 7. The society herewith makes affidavit that no member of the society receives a salary or compensation, such proceeds accruing from the concert going to the payment of artists and necessary, legitimate expenses.

CLARA N. REED, Secretary.
M. CLYDE CROSBY, Treasurer.

Trustee Atkins considered the two cases of the Chautauqua and Symphony Society as parallel.

Trustee Gill said that a more definite date should be given for the May performances and moved that the request be granted according to custom, provided the society charged no admission to the performances, but admit the general public. Seconded.

Trustee Washburn amended this motion that the request be granted as read.

Further heated discussion, wherein portions of the state law relative to the use of public school buildings out of school hours, was read, and Trustee Gill said that it should be left to the board of education to decide the educational status of the society in question.

Mrs. Reed stated that it would be an utter impossibility to give such educational concerts without charging admission to cover the cost of securing necessary artists, and paying legitimate expenses, whereupon Trustee Gill said that in that case the society was receiving the benefit of the proceeds of the concert, which he judged to be against the school law.

Finally the question was called on the amendment, Trustees Atkins, Washburn, Kearney and President Bernstein voting in the affirmative, Trustees Gill, Van Wagonen, Rafferty, Hale, Kelder, voting in the negative. Lost. The motion was then voted upon, with the same trustees voting for and against and the secretary announced that the motion was lost.

Trustee Atkins moved that a committee be appointed to draft rules concerning the granting of the use of the auditorium, but it was decided to refer the matter to the rules committee.

Superintendent Michael read a communication from the Federation of Women's Club which is conducting sewing classes in the lower part of the city asking for the use of a room in School No. 3 on Mondays for one of the classes. The letter was signed by Mrs. N. E. Fessenden. Upon Trustee Gill's motion, the matter was referred to the superindentent with power. Superintendent Michael being in favor, the request was granted.

A letter of appreciation Mrs. R. E. Leighton, president of Association of No. 6 School, was read in which they thanked the board for the rest room in the school and invited the board to inspect the same. The letter was filed.

Upon Trustee Gill's motion, permission was granted Miss Lina Schmidtkonz to use the auditorium for a piano recital of her pupils, the date not being stated. The public in general will be invited and no admission will be charged.

An invitation from Major J. H. Everett for the board to send a representative to the meeting of organizations of the city at the armory Friday, April 28, to discuss plans for the Decoration Day parade, was received by Superintendent Michael after the last meeting of the board and therefore he was not able to notify the board. Upon Surrogate Gill's motion, President Bernstein was appointed a committee to represent the education board at future meetings to be held relative to the parade.

The report of City Treasure F. H. Doremus of the sale of $40,500 school bonds at a recent date was read and filed.

The report of Chairman Van Wagonen, of the finance committee, was adopted. Bills for the month of April amounting to $1,347.18 were ordered paid, and also the April pay roll.

Before presenting the report of the teachers' committee to the board, Trustee Kelder moved that the names of attendance officers be stricken out. Trustee Washburn, of the committee, stating that the committee had had insufficient time to consider this part of the report, and asked that it be presented at a later date. The officers are Ira Britt and John Costello. The motion was carried unanimously. In this report are the names and salaries of teachers for 1916-17, some of which have been increased from that of the present year. The report appears elsewhere in The Freeman.

A discussion about teachers' salaries then ensued and it was explained why high school teachers are given more compensation than those of the grammar schools. The reason is that the secondary school instructors must pay much more for their education than those of the grammar grades.

It was brought out that each grammar school teacher gets an increase of $25 a year while the principals, with the exception of School No. 1 received a raise of $50 each year. This is according to a schedule which has been in force for a number of years. There is no special schedule for the high school teachers and the report shows that the secondary school teachers are increased according to the length of time they have served. Kingston high school teachers are paid lower than those of other cities, according to the discussion last night. Trustee Van Wagonen said that there is always an imminent danger of a good teacher being snatched away by another city if she is underpaid here. Surrogate Gill, in defending the higher increase which the high school teachers receive over their sisters of the grammar grades, again claimed that it is harder to produce results in the high school than in the grammar grades. The report was unanimously adopted.

Trustees Kearney and Gill of the visiting committee reported that they had investigated the condition of the buildings more than the mental ability of the students in their round of the schools. Mr. Gill visited the Wilbur school during school hours and was impressed by the good penmanship and arithmetical abilities of the pupils of that institution.

Trustees Keldr, Rafferty and Atkins were appointed as the visiting committee for May.

After considerable consideration, Superintendent Michael and Principal Moulton have decided that certain rules concerning who should be chosen commencement speakers should be adopted by the board. Superintendent Michael submitted the rules which were unanimously adopted, as follows:

"At the commencemnt exercises of the Kingston high school, eight speakers shall be chosen from the four boys having the highest scholarship and from the four girls having the highest scholarsip in the four year course such students are completing. Such scholarship rating shall be determined from the regents' marks as rated at Albany, as far as such marks are available at the time of computing such honors. The number of credits granted by the regents department shall be taken as a factor by which shall be multiplied the regents rating in a given subjet. The sum of such products shall be divided by the number of counts which a student has earned in such subjects.

"When a student is pursuing a subject in which no regents mark has been attained at the time of computation, the average as obtained from report cards in such subject shall be the number by which the factor is multiplied, as in the case of regents marks."

Important rulings relative to athletics at the high school were also adopted by the board, upon the recommendation of Superintendent Michael, who, with Mr. Moulton, drafted them. They govern the eligibility of students for athletics and are found elsewhere in The Freeman.

The board then adjourned.

Life and Character Reading

APRIL 29

The character of Alexander II of Russia, who was born April 29, 1818, is a good study for a person with similar birthdate.

He was most carefully educated and his father subjected him to all the rigors of military discipline.

He shows the tremendous courage which is given by the governing planet of the birthdate. The great achievement of his reign was the freeing of 23,000,000 serfs in 1861.

His achievements show what discipline, self denial and education may do for a person who struggles against the difficulties of the Taurus born.

Anger is the weakness of persons of this birthdate.

They should remember that every exhibition of temper in man is a miniature cyclone and its path of destruction is limited only by surroundings.

This is the day for skilled journeymen and expert engineers to search The Freeman Want Ads for positions.

Women in the Trades.

Our medieval forefathers were quite accustomed to women workers in many of the trades. Chaucer and Langland use many words with characteristic feminine suffixes, which indicate the trades then open to them, as, for instance, baxteres (female bakers) and souteresse (female shoemaker). There were also female candlemakers, wigmakers and bookbinders, and in an act of 1454 complaints are noticed of the women silk manufacturers of London against the Lombard merchants.—London Globe.

BRITISH ARMY HAS SURRENDERED TO TURKS

General Townshend, with 15,000 Men, Shut in Kut-el-Amara, Mesopotamia, Since September, Has Surrendered, According to Official Announcement Made in London.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 29.—The British army under General Townshend, which has been shut up in Kut-el-Amara, Mesopotamia, since early in September, has surrendered to the Turks.

Official announcement of the surrender of the army of General Townshend, which is estimated to contain about 15,000 men, was made today by the war office.

This is the second severe blow administered to the British by the Turks.

The first was the reverse at the Dardanelles, the second, at Kut-el-Amara, shatters the hopes of those who looked for an early resumption of the advance against Bagdad.

The chief stages of the defense of Kut-el-Amara and the defense of lief by an army under General Sir Percy Lake, follow:

Dec. 3—General Townshend's force reaches Kut-el-Amara from Ctisiphon.

Dec. 5.—Turkish advance column reach Sheikh Saad, 45 miles below Ket-el-Amara, completing the isolation of the British garrison.

Dec. 8.—Five days' attack began. The Turkish losses up to Dec. 18 alone being estimated at 1,000 men.

Dec. 18.—The British garrison's losses up to this date were estimated at 1,127.

Dec. 25.—Fierce fighting lasted throughout Christmas Day. Forts on the northern front of Kut-el-Amara were taken by the Turks but recaptured by the British in bloody counter assaults.

Jan. 6—Advance of the relief force under General Nixon begun.

(Gen. Nixon was relieved by Sir Percy Lake, chief of staff for India).

Jan. 7—An action of great violence fought at Sheikh Saad on the Tigris river. Followed by a retreat of the Turks.

Jan. 21—British attack at Umm-el-Hannah, 23 miles from Kut-el-Amara, repulsed.

Feb. 13, 17 and 19—Bombs dropped on Kut-el-Amara from aeroplanes moved to the front by Germans.

April 5—General Gorringe carries first and second lines of the Turkish positions at Umm-el-Hannah and Felahieh.

April 9—Sann-i-yat position attacked in an effort to relieve Kut. General Gorringe defeated. Ever since April 9 the British on both sides of the Tigris, east of Sann-i-yat have been trying to break through as wireless dispatches sent out of Kut by General Townsend said his position was getting desperate.

A relief ship sent out several days ago from Imam Ali Gherbi tried to get through to Kut but went aground in the Tigris and the attempt ended in failure.

The attempts of the British relief army to cut through were not only hindered by the fierce attacks of the Turks, often led by German officers, but by floods caused by heavy rains.

The size of the garrison is not definitely known. General Townshend originally had a brigade, but these troops were reinforced. At Ctesiphon the army suffered 4,500 casualties and subsequent losses brought the total list of casualties up to nearly 7,000. These do not include the casualties suffered by the army since it has been shut up in Kut.

The objective of the original expedition was Bagdad, the richest prize in the Persian Gulf sphere of operations.

But for the guns, ammunition, aeroplanes and other supplies, not to mention the officers furnished by Germany, the Turks would probably have been unable to stem the British advance.

High School Play a Success.

The dramatic ability of certain members of the high school senior class was proven last night by the production of their four act play, the "Rose O'Plymouth Town," before a fair sized audience. The young actors and actresses played their parts like experienced stage folk and really surprised the audience, who were expecting to see a production truly on amateur lines. The difficult parts of New England people with their quaint language and old fashioned manners were portrayed by the seniors with remarkable skill, reflecting the hard work done in rehearsing for the event. The director, Vincent Dailey, of New York city, and the actors are to be commended for their production.

Conlin Divorce Suit.

Testimony was taken by Supreme Court Justice Hasbrouck this morning in the divorce action of Jane V. Conlin against Edward Conlin. Both reside in Kingston where they were married July 15, 1908. The plaintiff asks the custody of the two children, Harold, aged 7, and Helen, aged 5. After hearing the testimony of one witness, the court held the case open for further proof.

Sunshine Society.

The Sunshine Society will meet at The Kirkland, corner of Main street and Clinton avenue, on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

DIED.

VAN STEENBERGH—At his residence, this city, Saturday morning, April 29, 1916, George H. Van Steenbergh.

Funeral from his late residence, 282 Albany avenue, Monday morning, at 8:30 o'clock. St. Joseph's Church at 9 a. m., where a solemn mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery. Relatives and friends invited to attend.

TORREY TOOK THE DARE.

Came to Buy Pigs but Found a Bride in Bloomington.

How James V. Torrey took a dare and married Florence M. Oakley in Rosendale last September, was related before Supreme Court Justice William P. Rudd in special term at Albany in the divorce action brought by Mrs. Sarah L. Crouse Torrey of this city, to whom an interlocutory decree of divorce was awarded. Papers in the case were filed Friday afternoon with the county clerk. Former Judge N. Frank O'Reilly appeared for the plaintiff.

A sequel to this suit followed before Judge Rudd, an annullment being granted Miss Oakley of her marriage to Torrey, which was performed by Justice of the Peace James Brown at Rosendale on September 27 last. Miss Oakley, who is 20, was the principal witness in the trial. She resides at Bloomington.

Questioned by the court she told of her marriage and said that she had known Torrey for three days previous to their marriage. He had come to her step-father's home, she said, to buy pigs.

"And in a jest you dared him to marry you?" was asked.

The witness admitted that was the case and said that Mr. Torrey had procured a license for them to wed. They lived together until last March and during that time, Miss Oakley learned that her husband was already married. Asked as to how she knew her husband was the same Torrey in the preceding litigation, she said that "he was the only Torrey around Kingston."

Mrs. Sarah L. C. Torrey was married to the defendant on January 19, 1887, and evidence of the second marriage was sufficient ground for her divorce application being granted.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Members of the Soiskanishade Club will meet Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at No. 100 Elmendorf street to go to the Tuberculosis Hospital, where they will give an entertainment for the patients.

One of the most pleasant and successful social events of the season was the dance given Friday evening at Burgevin Hall, corner of Fair and Main streets, under the auspices of the students of the Moran Business College. More than one hundred were present and enjoyed the festivities of the evening. Excellent music was furnished by McLean's orchestra. The hall was beautifully decorated with American flags predominating. During the evening refreshments were served by the Wiltwyck Inn management. A number of out of town guests were present, including a number from Ellenville, New Paltz, Rosendale, Big Indian and other Ulster county villages and all voted the students to be splendid entertainers. The committee in charge of the affair was composed of Miss L. Doty, Miss Almeda Lewis, Miss Mabel M. Nestell, Chester Tice and James D. Kenny, who were ably assisted by the entire faculty and student body of the school, to all of whom the evening was most delightful and will long be remenbered. During the evening Miss Katherine Gardner of Ulster Park rendered a soprano solo to the delight of everyone and responded to several encores.

Schaeffer-Kraus.

George Adam Schaeffer of No. 145 Greenkill avenue and Miss Edna Kraus of No. 45 Stephan street, were united in marriage on Wednesday, April 26, at St. Peter's Church by the Rev. George Wermuth.

Moran-Lucy.

Miss Helen May Lucy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Lucy, and Francis Patrick Moran, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Moran of Modena, were united in marriage on Monday, April 24, by the Rev. Father Hopkins in St. Charles's Church at Gardiner. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Lucy, while the groom was attended by his brother, Edward L. Moran of New York city. Two other brothers, John and Albert of Gardiner, acted as ushers. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride.

ABOUT THE FOLKS.

Mrs. Sam Israel was removed Friday night from her home, No. 214 Wall street to the Benedictine Sanitarium, where she underwent an operation this morning.

Delinquent Chautauqua Guarantors.

Thirty of the guarantors of the coming Chautauqua course have not yet made their report of ticket sales and for that reason the ticket and financial matters connected with the Chautauque could not be closed when the guarantors met on Friday afternoon. It is urged that reports and returns be made as soon as possible. They may report by telephone to the secretary, whose call is 1717-W.

Moose Memorial Service.

Kingston Lodge, No. 970, Loyal Order of Moose, will hold memorial services in their rooms on Thomas street on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All brothers are cordially invited.

Performance on Monday evening, May 1, will begin at 8 o'clock.

Music will be good and with satisfaction given to all present. Dancing will begin at 10:30 and will continue untill one o'clock.

There are few facts to remember about this play. The show, "Only a Country Girl," is an English-American play. It is written and will be presented successfully in English by the Polish amateurs for the benefit of their church. This will be the first English play presented in Kingston by the Polish young people of this city. In the "specialties" the chorus of large number of pretty girls will appear in Polish costumes. The Rev. Francis Lesniewski is ambitious about this play that his young parishioners, who are in the cast, will mage great success and the director, P. McDermott, gives assurance that all the guests will have full satisfaction for their presence at the play.

ODDS AND ENDS.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Philip J. Clarke, a Newburgh man who has been machinist aboard the Pacific Mail liner Kroonland, died April 19th at a hospital in Rio Janeiro, according to word received Thursday in Newburgh. A mother, brother and three sisters, survive.

George H. Van Steenbergh died early this morning at his home, No. 282 Albany avenue. He is survived by his father, Ansen Van Steenbergh, one brother, Harold, and one sister, Helen. The funeral will be held from the late residence Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock and from St. Joseph's Church at 9 o'clock with interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

Joseph Bowers, son of George Bowers, died at the home of his father near Gardiner Saturday evening, April 22, of tuberculosis, aged twenty-seven years and about seven months. He became ill about a year ago and gradually grew worse. Besides his father he is survived by two brothers, Cornelius and George, and two sisters, Julia and Helen. Funeral was held at ten o'clock on Tuesday morning at St. Charles's Church, the Rev. Father Hopkins officiating.

A Successful Grange Play.

The play "Down in Maine" was successfully presented by the basketball teams of the Lake Katrine Grange at Grange Hall on Friday evening. The play was one of the most successful amateur performances ever given at the hall and each member of the cast came in for a full share of praise. Another pleasing feature of the evening was the Punch and Judy show given by Professor John Myer.

Immaculate Conception Church.

Tomorrow on Low Sunday there will be three masses in the Church of Immaculate Conception. First low mass at 7 a. m. Second low mass at 8:30 a. m. The third high mass at 10:30 a. m. Vespers at 7:30 p. m.

SINN FEIN LEADERS PROCLAIM REPUBLIC

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 29.—Ireland has been proclaimed a republic by the Sinn Fein leaders.

Peter Pearce, head master of St. Endas secondary school, has been named provisional president.

News of the action of the rebels in declaring Ireland free and independent of the British government was sent out from the revolutionary headquarters in the Dublin postoffice by wireless.

A FORGOTTEN GREAT MAN.

General Timothy Ruggles and What He Might Have Been.

How many readers have ever heard the name of General Timothy Ruggles? Probably very few indeed, and yet it was believed in his own day—which was the era of our Revolution—that had General Ruggles remained true to the patriot cause he would have had at least as good a chance as Washington to be chosen the commander of the colonial armies.

He was a natural leader in the civil and military affairs of the colonies. He was president of the stamp act congress, which assembled in New York city in 1765, and at that very time he was chief justice of the court of common pleas of Worcester county, Mass., having been promoted from the bar, where he had one worthy rival, James Otis.

General Ruggles was also the chief military figure of the northern colonies. He served four years in the French and Indian war and rose to the rank of brigadier general. He was a colonel at Crown Point and second in command at the battle of Lake George. He commanded a brigade in Lord Amherst's expedition against Montreal.

He was famous for his daring and skill, especially in the command of Indian troops, and for his ability as a drill master. The very men who fought at Lexington and Bunker Hill had been trained by Ruggles on northern fields.

In the events of that stormy period Ruggles remained a patriot up to the actual scene of the stamp act congress. At the end of the third day's deliberations, when the protest to his majesty George III. had been drawn up, he refused to sign and, laying down his gavel of office, left the hall. That was one of the dramatic events of the period, and for it he was reprimanded by the general court of Massachusetts.

Ruggles was several times mobbed on his way home to Hardwick, Mass., where he had a great estate, but he was not a man to be frightened by demonstrations of that sort. His faithfulness to the crown was soon rewarded with his appointment as a member of the king's mandamus council. When Boston was taken by the colonists in 1776 he decided to leave. He received a grant of 10,000 acres of the best land in Nova Scotia. He removed to that colony and started a model farm on the site of what is now the town of Wilmot. He lived to the ripe old age of eighty-four.—Youth's Companion.

Anaesthetic For the Teeth Wanted.

There is no local anaesthetic that will penetrate dentine, which forms the principal part of a tooth. That is why dentists hurt teeth so much when drilling holes in them for fillings or when grinding them down for gold crowns. Any one who will invent something that can be put on a tooth to render it insensitive for ten minutes without injuring it has a fortune awaiting him.

Cocaine and novocaine, which are used as local anaesthetics in other parts of the body, have no effect upon the teeth, as they cannot penetrate the hard tissue of which these are composed.—New York World.

A Carlyle Snub.

Carlyle had an inveterate hatred for Darwinism, which he described as the "gorilla damnification of humanity." Leonard Huxley in his life of his father recalls an incident that happened shortly before Carlyle's death. "My father," he writes, "saw him walking slowly and alone down the opposite side of the street and, touched by his solitary appearance, crossed over and spoke to him. The old man looked at him and, merely remarking, 'You're Huxley, aren't you, the man that says we are all descended from the monkeys?' went on his way."

Lowell on His Own Writings.

James Russell Lowell was not the kind of writer to take his own productions seriously. He was not like Tennyson, who could be made wretched by a disparaging remark about his poetry by a young girl. That is perhaps the way a poet ought to feel, however skillful he may be in concealing it. Lowell told me that a young Englishman, on being introduced to him in Madrid, said, "I never read your works," to which he had replied, "Well, I never regarded them as necessary to a liberal education."—E. S. Nadal in Harper's Magazine.

Happy Family.

"I shall never marry," announced the sixteen-year-old daughter.

"I said the very same thing at your age," sighed her mother, "and goodness knows I've often wished I'd kept my promise."

"And you're not the only one who's wished it, either," barked dad, who had entered the room unobserved by the other two.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

When Man Proposes.

"Have women a sense of humor?" asked the matter of fact man.

"Oh, yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "But they have to work it. If women laughed at everything they saw that's funny they would spoil efforts to propose by some really nice men."—Washington Star.

FIELD OF SPORTS.

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism and Other Lines of Athletics.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Newburgh, April 29.—Johnny Leonard of Albany outpointed Kid Black of New York in a ten round bout here last night.

New York, April 29.—Howard P. Drew holds a new world's record for 90 yards today. He clipped one-fifth of a second off his previous mark when he sprinted the distance in 9 seconds flat in the Booklyn armory last night.

New York, April 29.—Fred Fulton, the Minnesota giant, made a hit with New York fans in his debut last night. The contender for the heavyweight title met Al Reich. He hammered his opponent into submission in nine rounds of fighting. Both of Reich's eyes were closed and he was groping helplessly around the ring when Referee Brown stopped the bout. Reich had the better of one round, the first. He staggered the big western giant with a couple of punches, but after that the New York Adonis's aggressiveness left him, and Fulton reigned supreme.

Denver, April 29.—Ad Wolgast was munching the sweets of victory again today after an extended fast. Ad won all the way over "Wop" Flynn here last night in a 15-round bout.

Cleveland, April 29.—George Chip outpointed Gus Christy of Milwaukee in their ten-round bout here last night.

Newark, O., April 29.—Paul Bowzer, world's middle weight champion catch as catch can wrestler, retained his title today. He defeated Joe Turner of Washington, former champion, last night, in two straight falls in 55½ minutes and 19½ minutes.

"Being Musical."

What is called "being musical" cannot be passed on to some one else or to something else. You cannot be musical vicariously—through another person, through so many thousand dollars, through civic pride, through any other of the many means we employ. Being musical does not necessarily lie in performing music. It is rather a state of being which every individual who can hear is entitled by nature to attain to in a greater or less degree.—Atlantic.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 29.—"Get out!" is the ultimatum delivered to W. H. Gocher, secretary-treasurer of the National Trotting Association, by the bulk of sportsman connected with the light harness game.

A concerted fight now is being waged against Gocher, whose home is in Hartford, Conn., in an effort to oust him from his seemingly impregnable position as the dominant power in the National Trotting Association, once the mightiest organization in the turf game.

For many years the growth of the sport has been hindered because of internal strife. The rival factions have been so busy fighting each other that they had no time to fight for the common good of their sport. They let it drift along into a rut. But now they mean to pull it out by ousting Gocher from his job.

The charges are made on every hand that Gocher rules the N. T. A. for selfish purposes only. They claim that his organization, instead of being conducted for the great good of the game, is operated for Gocher. A bitter attack on him by Harry K. Devereux, president of the grand circuit, has been followed by merciless editorials in turf papers.

"Gocher must go; he is a disgrace to the sport," seems to be the concensus of opinion.

"The final nail was driven into Gocher's official coffin when his actions forced the resignation of four members of the board of appeals of the N. T. A.," said one harness official. "The men who quit represented the highest type of sportsmen in the country. They were men who never would have resigned from their position had conditions been less intolerable."

Gocher has been identified with the National Trotting Association for 26 years. In that time, it is charged, he gradually has manipulated its affairs so that he has become the real power. Devereux charged that Gocher put through legislation which insures him in power for some years to come and refers to him as a "scheming hired official."

Some years ago a number of the men connected with the National Trotting Association became disgusted with the way its affairs were being operated. They quit and formed a rival organization known as the American Trotting Association. And then began a fight between the two bodies for members. So engrossed did each faction become that it forgot all about the vital interests it represented—the harness horse.

But now the fight seems to have centered on Gocher alone. True, he has the support of his associates in his own organization, but it is said that some of the associations affiliated with the National are on the point of resigning.

"Now is the time for all factions within the harness game to forget their other differences and unite in a fight on Gocher," declares Devereux. "Gocher is a detriment to light harness racing. The interests of the sport demand that he be removed."

And throughout the trotting world comes speeches to echo that of Devereux.

"If Gocher ever filled any field of usefulness in the sport, that time has passed," declares "Marque," in an editorial in a recent issue of the Horse Review, which bitterly denounces Gocher. "He stands discredited and despised, and if he were a man of pride and feeling, he would resign before he is taken by the seat of his trousers and vigorously ejected."

But in the face of all the charges hurled at him, Gocher remained silent. He knows full well that the trotting folks—or at least the majority of them are "out for him;" that they have greased the chutes and want to push him down into oblivion. But Gocher seems to be unworried, as far as surface conditions show, and the reason for his apparent calm, it is said, is the fact that he is the real power in the N. T. A.—the baoss of it. And how can anyone fire the boss?

Filth Means Flies and Death

FLIES love to feast on filth and then get into the house and wipe their feet on your cake or on baby's bottle. Screen your house.

It is true they are nature's scavengers, but they spread filth and disease in doing their work, and, besides, it is better to be your own scavenger by keeping clean than to have the flies do it for you, for not only is the fly a dangerous companion, but clean people are beginning to suspect that those who have flies about them are dirty housekeepers.

If therefore you wish to bear a reputation for cleanliness in your neighborhood be sure that your trash and manure heaps are frequently removed and that your house is properly screened.

WILL PLAY FIRST GAME OF SEASON

The recently organized Kingston Baseball Club will play its first game of the season on Sunday afternoon at McVey's Field on Delaware avenue when they will cross bats with the Mercury Club of Newburgh. This game was to have been played last Sunday but owing to the rainy weather the visitors did not show up. The game will be called at 2 o'clock, and a fast contest may be expected by the fans.

Clarke of Poughkeepsie will be on the mound for Kingston while Schirick will backstop. Kissan a well-known twirler will do the honors for the visitors while Devine will catch.

The local clubs has some of the fastest amateur players in this section and the fans will have a good opportunity to test their meetle on Sunday as the visitors are a fast and speedy bunch of players.

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

There was a ball game in Boston yesterday. A snow ball conflict. Never know of those kind of balls being in baseball. Heard of low, slow, spit, wide, close, high, but never snow.

Great loves—The Giants for Bill Klem.
Romeo for Juliet.
Baltimore for Jim Gilmore.
Moran for Willard.

Jack Dillon and Battling Levinsky better fight a few more times. They might get well acquainted then.

In Chicago the Cubs are now in first place, but in Philadelphia they are second.

Lewis hasn't forgotten how to hammer the pill for the circuit. His homer in the ninth tied the score. In the eleventh the Yanks flivvered and lost the opportunity to lead the procession.

It's not what you were but what you are today—by Jack Coombs and Chief Bender.

The Yanks had an expensive Tipple. It cost $9,000. But Tipple wasn't good. He went to Baltimore.

Those last inning finishes are getting on the fans nerves. They were staked by the Tigers, Indians and Nationals yesterday.

Why do you pick on us out of 90,000,000 people the Reds chanted at the Pirates.

We get a message about a thrilling combat. "Please send out thanks," it ended. We don't mind doing favors, but we can't figure why the message came collect.

"Horse Parade" in Poughkeepsie.

One of the many features to be introduced into the observance of "Be Kind to Animals Week" in Poughkeepsie during the period May 21 to 30, under the auspices of the local branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, will be a horse parade on the afternoon of May 30. It is planned to have, as far as possible, all of the horses in the city participate in the parade. The horses will be divided into classes.

WHO PAYS FOR THIS VARNISH?

Moving Tale of Why B. P. W Does Not Occupy Its Offices at City Hall—Question is Who Pays For Varnishing the Floor of the Office.

Some time ago the board of public works requested the common council to lay a hardwood floor in the mayor's office at the city hall which is used by the board as its office, and the request was granted. The floor was laid about a month ago, but the board of public works has not taken possession and is still holding forth in the common council chambers.

While the floor has been laid for some time it is still in an unfinished condition as it has not been varnished, and many visitors at the city hall have been wondering why the work has been delayed.

The reason has always remained a dark and unsolved mystery until the rumor has gained ground that the real reason is that there is a hitch between the board and the building committee of the common council as to which official body shall pay for the work of having the floor varnished. It is said that bids have been asked and the estimated cost is about $30.

It is understood that the board believe the work of finishing the floor is up to the common council as they have charge of all repairs to the city hall, while the building committee is said to take the stand that the board will have the use of the office and should have the varnishing done.

In the meantime the board of public works is still in possession of one corner of the common council chamber and it is said that they will not move out until the floor in their own office has been varnished.

Just how the deadlock will be broken is not known.

It is a "serious" problem as to which body shall pay and should not be treated lightly as a jest.

Fortunately, however, the destinies of the nation do not hinge on the outcome.

Controlling the Temper.

Good health is the first requisite of a good temper. All one knows or feels finds expression through the body. Thought, will, action, are all influenced by its condition. Whatever impairs the integrity of the body or disturbs the harmony of its wonderful organization creates discord for the whole being. Unpleasant feelings due to ill health are likely to produce corresponding unpleasantness of disposition. The disorder, if prolonged, results in a bad habit, thus becoming an element in individual character. Deranged digestion, vitiated blood and other impaired vital processes are at the foundation of much of the irritability, impatience, caprice, ill temper and so called naughtiness of childhood.—Good Health.

Others' "Best Selves."

We all find a good deal of comfort in thinking of our best selves. If we thought very much about our worst selves we should be pretty miserable. Such thinking as we do about "worst selves" is usually about the worst selves of other people. And our consciousness of the worst selves of other people usually corresponds with our power to bring out those worst selves. —John D. Barry.

Wha She Wanted.

"Ma wants a package of dye and she wants a fashionable color," said the little girl of a druggist. "A fashionable color!" echoed the pharmacist. "What does she want it for, eggs or clothes." "Well," replied the girl, "the doctor says ma has stomach trouble and ought to diet. And ma says if she has to dye it she might as well dye it a fashionable color."

SOCONY KERO-SCENES

"John!"
"Yes, my love."
"John, the kerosene can is empty."

* * * *

"John! Did you hear me?"
"Yes, light of my life. You said 'The kerosene can is empty.' I am sincerely sorry that the kerosene can is empty."
"Yes, so am I, because you've got to go out and get it filled."

* * * *

"John! John!"
"Yes, my love. Can I get it filled at the grocery on the the corner?"
"No, you can't. I don't know anything about their kerosene? You've got to go down the street to Smith Bros. They carry SOCONY Kerosene."
"But, my love, be reasonable. Isn't all kerosene alike?"
"Yes, it isn't. There is as much difference in kerosene as there is in eggs. Get SOCONY Kerosene—it's the Standard Oil Company of New York's best grade of refined oil"
"Yes, my love. SOCONY, you say?"
"Yes, SOCONY. Look for the SOCONY sign on the store window. Mind you don't come back with anything else. And hurry!"
"Yes, my love."
